Smith Demands Repeal; Wants To Lead Party

Admits "Alfred E. Smith" His Favorite

CITES WET STAND
Senator Hull Also Forecasts Resubmission Plan

Chicago—(P)—Renewed demands for a prohibition repeal submission plan came from Democratic chiefs today as they assembled on the convention scene for the preliminary maneuvers of the battle for the presidential nomination.

Alfred E. Smith, a leader of the fight against Franklin D. Roosevelt, demanded repeal of prohibition and immediate revision of the Volstead act. He was his own favorite for the presidential nomination and expected to join in the fight to make J. Edgar Hoover, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, permanent chairman of the convention.

On this fight will come the first test of strength of the Roosevelt forces. They are supporting Senator Walsh of Montana, for the post.

Senator Hull of Tennessee, prominently mentioned for chairman of the resolutions committee, said the consensus of wets and dries in the party favored submitting to the states the question of retention or repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Hull is a dry, and a Roosevelt supporter.

He declared, however, prohibition is subordinate to the economic issue.

Smith's first statement on the convention scene, however, was restricted entirely to prohibition, it gave no hint of the intensity of the party dispute that is stirring leaders, made no mention of Roosevelt or of the coming contest over permanent chairmanship of the convention which will bring the first test of strength of the Roosevelt forces.

Attacks Amendment
Smith called the eighteenth amendment "unworkable" and demanded its repeal. He said the Volstead act should be changed to permit the sale of beverages of a reasonable alcoholic content, thus diverting "the profits of the bootlegger into legitimate taxes."

Smith's statement follows: "The eighteenth amendment never should have been put into the constitution. It is unworkable. I attacked it from the time it was first proposed and prophesied its failure and stated that it would be proved to be the greatest curse ever put on an unsuspecting people."

"I fought it when it was unpopular to take that side of the issue in many parts of my own state and in many other states of the Union and when every weapon of narrow-minded intolerance was turned against me."

"I carried the banner when the army was small, the stragglers numerous and the opposition bitter. I was then and I am now for the unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

"The Volstead act should at once be amended by a scientifically correct definition that will permit the sale of beverages of reasonable alcoholic content. The people of the United States are entitled to this relief which would divert the pro-

Fail to Limit Senate Debate On Relief Bill

Leaders Still Hopeful for

Offer His Amendment to Measure

Washington—(P)—An amendment to the unemployment relief bill to increase from $40,000,000 to $250,000,000 the amount provided for loans for financing exportation of agricultural products was rejected today by the senate. It was sponsored by Senator Connally (D., Texas).

Washington—(P)—Despite failure of efforts to limit debate, the senate today pressed forward on the $2,000,000,000 Democratic unemployment relief bill with leaders hopeful of a vote before nightfall.

Meanwhile, in a statement off the floor Senator Johnson (R., Calif.), charged that the administration is seeking to force an adjournment of congress before a relief bill is passed.

Senator LaFollette (R., Wis.) objected to a proposal by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, to limit debate on the gigantic relief bill.

The Wisconsin senator said he wanted time to present his case for the amendment he has offered to increase the proposed public works bond issue from $500,000,000 to $5,500,000,000.

Senator McNary, the assistant Republican leader, indicated that another attempt to limit debate would be made later.

Johnson, in a statement to newspapermen, said: "If congress adjourns without some measure of relief for our people who are suffering, congress will deserve the execration which undeserving propaganda has heaped upon it and any individual who refuses to do his utmost to obtain a measure of relief for the unemployed and suffering humanity is recreant to his trust."

"It seems to be obvious to me that the administration is seeking to force an adjournment before we pass a relief measure and those with a due sense of the obligation resting upon them and who have the slightest conception of the conditions affecting human beings in this country ought to resent it."

Meanwhile, Speaker Garner told newspapermen he understood the $2,000,000,000 Wagner bill already passed by the senate and now before the banking committee would be added to the $2,000,000,000 measure before the senate as a substitute for his own measure.

"That will put the whole matter in conference," he explained.

Schneller Backs Plank on Liquor

Denies it is "Straddling Plank" in Address
At Milwaukee

Milwaukee, (P)—Speaking before the Milwaukee Round Table Luncheon club today, Col. Frank J. Schneller, Neenah, said the two momentous problems facing the United States were solution of the depression and the "perplexities of the eighteenth amendment."

Schneller, a conservation Republican delegate to the recent Chicago G. O. P. convention said the much-discussed prohibition plank was "not a straddling plank."

"Just what is the plank? Truly enough it is preceded by voluminous verbiage that is not germane, but who of us men when we decided to marry, did not send a more or less tender farewell to his secondary flames? It was only courtesy," he said. "The last two paragraphs are the edible kernel of the nut."

Schneller then said these paragraphs provided opportunity for the states, in constitutional conventions, to pass upon an amendment to allow states to deal with prohibition as they desired, "subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist."

He said in the light of the vote of the convention delegates on the minority report for a repeal plank, it was evident that such a plank could not yet gain approval from the number of states necessary to adopt repeal.

Roosevelt Asks Walker To Reply to Accusers

Albany, (P)—Roosevelt today called upon Mayor Walker of New York city, to reply to the charges brought against the mayor by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the legislative committee investigating the Democratic administration of New York city.

At the same time the governor asked the mayor to include in his reply answers to supplemental charges forwarded by civic organizations of Greater New York, demanding the removal of Mayor Walker, based on testimony before the legislative committee.

Prohibition Agents Liberated by Court In Fatal Shooting

Dallas, Texas—(P)—Prohibition agents L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton were free today of legal responsibility for the slaying of F. M. McGlothlin, country storekeeper, April 8. United States District Judge William H. Atwell ordered an instructed verdict in their favor late yesterday.

On motion of the prosecution all other charges against the agents were dismissed, as well as those against Buddy Hoard, an informer. McGlothlin was killed and his wife wounded when the agents arranged a rendezvous with a suspected bootlegger at his store. The McGlothlins thought the agents were robbers.

Judge Atwell said the agents had a clear case of self-defense. The McGlothlins were shot after the wife seized a pistol and the husband a shotgun.

The three defendants had been indicted by the Dallas grand jury but the cases were transferred to federal court. The agents were suspended after the indictments.

Kills Bandit in Holdup Attempt

Mayor of Chicago Suburb Puts Two Others to Flight After Battle

Chicago—(P)—A fighting mayor of a suburban community of 3,000 souls called the leaden bluff of three bandits on a deserted highway early today and disregarding personal danger, shot one of them to death and forced the others to flee.

The mayor, George A. Hahn of the village of South Chicago Heights, was en route home with a neighbor, Mrs. Court Kraemer, when the bandit car pulled up alongside his about 20 miles south of the loop, and its occupants committed him to stop.

He refused, and advising Mrs. Kraemer to "lay low," he stepped on the accelerator. The holdup men fired four bullets into his car and all of them narrowly missed him. Undaunted, he returned the fire and saw one of the men fall to the pavement. The others fled.

While Mayor Hahn hastened to nearby Chicago Heights to summon police reinforcements for a chase, a youthful driver of a bullet-pierced car called at St. James hospital in that village with the body of a man identified as Dominick Guzzino, 22, of Chicago Heights.

The youth, Herman Scazzia, 20, was arrested but denied any complicity in the attempted holdup. He said he found Guzzino wounded in the car and drove him to the hospital. Mayor Hahn expressed belief Guzzino was the man he saw fall to the highway.

The police theorized the men who fled returned after Mayor Hahn's departure from the scene and picked up the body of their companion.

Assessor of Incomes Quits at Fond du Lac

Fond du Lac—(P)—The resignation of E. P. Worthing as assessor of incomes and supervisor of assessment for the Fond du Lac district, including Fond du Lac, Winnebago, Dodge and Washington cos., has been filed with the state tax commission in Madison, it was learned here today. No reason for his retirement was given.

The state tax commission recently announced plans for adding Waukegan, Okauchee, Green Lake and Sheboygan-cos to the Fond du Lac district.

Eleanor Boardman and King Vidor Separate

Los Angeles—(P)—The Examiner publishes a copyrighted statement by Eleanor Boardman, film actress, that she and her husband, King Vidor, director, have separated and that a divorce is imminent. Miss Boardman said she would ask custody of their two small daughters.

Although their differences were not specified, it was known according to the Examiner, that relations have been strained for a year. They were married five years ago.

Borah Gives Approval to Proposal to Slash Arms

Washington—(P)—President Hoover's proposal to the Geneva disarmament conference for a one-third cut in world armaments drew the immediate approval today of Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee who only two days ago announced he would not support the president for reelection on the party platform.

Borah said the plan seemed "fair and sound" and expressed the hope it would bring a realization to the conference that failure to disarm would "bring an irreparable disaster."

The foreign relations chairman, in a formal statement said: "Looking over the president's proposal somewhat hurriedly, it seems to me fair and sound. I am for drastic reduction of armaments and so long as all nations are treated fairly I do not care much how it is brought about."

"I sincerely hope the proposal of the president will bring the

German Priest is Reported Slain By Jap Soldiers

British Nationals Advised To Leave Chientao
—Uprising Feared

Peiping, China—(P)—British nationals were advised today to evacuate the territory around Chientao, on the Korean border in Kirin province, Manchuria, following the alleged slaying of a German Catholic missionary, Father Conrad Rapp, by Japanese soldiers.

The British nationals were advised to leave because of fear of anti-foreign uprisings. It was believed here no Americans were in the region.

Missionary reports received here said Father Rapp was hurrying on horseback to the deathbed of a colleague stricken with typhus when he was halted at night by a Japanese military picket.

When he produced his identity card, the report said, the Japanese pulled him from the saddle, declaring he insulted the imperial Japanese army by failing to dismount. The soldiers beat him until he was unconscious, the reports said, then shot him.

Photographs of the body showed that the priest was shot through the heart and abdomen and lay on a stretcher in 30 places. It was also reported his skull was crushed, his nose broken and both arms smashed.

The German legation here instructed the German consul-general at Mukden to investigate the case.

Nazis, Reds and Police in Clash

Communist Paper Says Hitler Troops Told to Arm and Report

Berlin—(P)—The Communist newspaper Rote Fahne said today Adolf Hitler's National Socialist legions were ordered to report armed to their headquarters within 24 hours. Meanwhile "the new German cabinet faced an apparently inevitable showdown between Hitler and the state governments of the Reich."

Blood flowed last night throughout Germany as the Nazis, Communists and police fought it out in many cities with guns and blood. One Nazi was shot and killed in Berlin and a young Nazi opponent was stabbed to death in Essen.

Dozens were gravely injured in the series of riots. In Oppeln one Nazi was reported dying as a result of a Communist attack.

The cabinet today struggled with the problem of keeping its peace between Hitler's irate demand that his legions be permitted to wear their uniforms in spite of the police of the states, and the insistence of the state governments that the constitution of the Reich gives them the power to put down all movements they decide to be threatening.

The fighting last night took place in Berlin, Cologne, Wandsbeck, near Hamburg, Frankfurt-am-Main, Andernach, Varel, Kiel and other towns.

A student riot resulted at Frankfurt when National Socialist uniforms appeared on the university campus.

A navy parade at Kiel, commemorating the scuttling of the German fleet the "Scapa" Flow after the war 13 years ago, was cancelled because of the fighting there.

British Give Cautious Approval to Presi- dent's Plan

Other Delegations at Geneva Apparently Favor Proposals

Geneva, Switzerland—(P)—President Hoover's proposal for a smashing reduction of the world's arms was received with almost breathless silence when Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation, presented it to the disarmament conference this afternoon.

Previously advanced copies of Mr. Gibson's speech had been circulated among the various delegations. The first reaction from the British was careful, prudent approval in general terms.

The French, on the other hand, received the announcement with frank hostility.

Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, said that so far as Great Britain is concerned the proposal will receive prompt and careful examination.

"We are convinced," said he, "that any reasonable step whereby the vast total of men under arms throughout the world can be reduced in any way which does not diminish the security of any country should be welcomed."

There was a sharp difference in attitude noticeable in the reception of the plan by members of the British delegation, speaking privately.

Cabinet Differs
Prime Minister MacDonald spoke with restrained cordiality but Sir John's comments were frigidly polite rather than friendly. The difference emphasized a division of sentiment on foreign policy which has existed for some time in the British cabinet.

The French antagonism was revealed even before Mr. Gibson presented the president's message. Premier Herriot and several of his colleagues saw an advance copy and protested immediately that the French could not accept it. Joseph Paul-Boncour, the minister for war, said France once more would raise the old question of security.

The reductions and abolitions proposed by the president, they asserted, would merely increase the French insecurity. As a matter of fact, they said, Germany would not be reduced equally with France in fighting strength, for she does not possess many of the arms which would be affected.

The Germans hailed the Hoover suggestions with enthusiasm, finding in them much for which they have long contended. They did not consider that it fulfills all their desires, especially their demand for equality in the right to arm.

The Italian delegates expressed hearty approval of the plan. In addition to practical objections the French also protested to be offended at the manner in which the proposal was launched. They criticized it as smacking too much of the spirit of an ultimatum.

Still Explodes, Sets Milwaukee Home Afire

Milwaukee—(P)—Harry Pavasil took a night out last night and his 23-year-old wife, after putting the baby to bed, went up into the attic to see how the still was making out.

She found it bubbling ominously and before long, as she was standing over it, the apparatus exploded, searing her face. The flames spread to the attic and the firemen came. They called federal agents after sending the wife to a hospital.

The agents found the remains of a 100 gallon still in the attic a 200 gallon still in the basement, and a 50 gallon still in the garage. Also they found a large quantity of mash.

This afternoon Harry hadn't returned from his night out.

Eau Claire Man Head of Commercial Secretaries

Madison—(P)—A. T. Sands, Eau Claire, was elected president of the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Organization secretaries at the close of their two day convention here last night.

E. L. McGurn, Waukesha, was named vice president and Edward Hanf, Beaver Dam, secretary. The following were elected directors: A. D. Murphy, Green Bay; Dan Vriesman, Racine; Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee; J. M. Campbell, Janesville; A. W. Fagerstrom, LaCrosse; and Lee L. Yorkson, Wausau.

Arrest Youth on Charge Of Stealing Automobile

Madison—(P)—Richard Goldsmith, 17, Fond du Lac was arrested here today when he attempted to obtain gasoline at a farm house for the automobile which he was driving and which police said was stolen from J. J. Fitzgerald at Eagle Wis. The youth was to be taken to Eagle today.

Urges Abolition of Tanks, Chemical War, Big Guns

Would Slash Land
Forces and Bar Aerial Bombings

Washington—(P)—President Hoover, in a sudden and dramatic announcement at the White House today, proposed principles for reducing the arms of the entire world by nearly one-third.

With Secretary Simson at his side, the president read to a small group of newspapermen hurriedly assembled at the executive mansion a statement saying that "the time has come when we should cut through the brush" and adopt arms reductions calculated to save between $10,000,000,000 and $15,000,000,000 during the next ten years.

Five broad principles were laid down by the chief executive and upon this foundation he proposed among other things:

Abolition of all tanks, chemical warfare and large mobile guns. Reduction of one-third in the strength of all land armies over and above "the so-called police component."

The abolition of all bombing planes and the "total prohibition of all bombardment from the air." Reduction in the treaty number and tonnage of all battleships by one-third.

Reduction in the treaty tonnage of aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers by one-fourth and of submarines by one-third with no nation having more than 35,000 tons of submarines.

Simultaneously with the president's pronouncement today it was learned in authoritative quarters that the proposals suggested already have been approved fully by Secretaries Stimson, Hurley and Adams, chief of staff of the army and the chief of naval operations and by the entire American delegation at Geneva.

Mr. Hoover's broad and drastic plan was placed before the Geneva conference today, almost simultaneously with his sending it to a group of hardly a dozen newspaper correspondents assembled in his private office.

The principles enunciated by the chief executive for slicing the world's armaments by 33 per cent were read by him as follows:

"First—The Kellogg-Briand pact, to which we are all signatories, can only mean that the nations of the

Three Burned to Death In Pennsylvania Crash

Lancaster, Pa.—(P)—Three men burned to death today in a collision of three trucks on the Lincoln highway near here, another was critically injured.

The dead: Philip Hovey, 18, Philadelphia, Howard McAllister, Wilmington, Del., Howard Stark, 30, Mt. Joy. The injured man is Edward Hovey, brother of Philip.

One of the vehicles, driven by Hovey, crashed into another driven by Bernard J. Lynch, parked on the roadside, and was in turn struck from the rear by another truck. All three burst into flames.

Lynch said he was driving a load of tires from Cumberland, Md., to New York when his truck broke down and he parked to await repairs.

Woman Pays $50 Fine on Reckless Driving Charge

Washington—(P)—Mrs. Bertha Huddleston, wife of Representative Huddleston of Alabama, was fined $50 in police court today after pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Huddleston was arrested, with a male companion, the night of June 8 after the machine she was driving collided with two other cars. She was booked at that time on a charge of driving while drunk. The charge was changed by Stanley Denesale, assistant corporation counsel, when Mrs. Huddleston appeared in court. Mrs. Huddleston's companion, who was arrested for intoxication, did not appear and forfeited $10 collateral.

Appleton Trade Expansion Days---Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Borah Lashes Brown's Stand At Convention

Says Postmaster General Declared He Expected Return of Saloon

Washington—(AP)—A swift succession of startling developments around the prohibition question today kept the capital stirred to fever pitch.

Hardly had political Washington calmed down from Speaker Garner's unexpected declaration for repeal of the amendment yesterday when Senator Borah of Idaho, told the senate that Postmaster General Brown, close political adviser of the president, had said he expected return of the saloon to President conditions, and that he expected to see it return.

It was Borah's second spectacular prohibition declaration in as many days, and was the direct outcome of his speech to the senate Monday condemning and rejecting the Rehabilitation platform and all its planks, particularly the resubmission one. In that speech he said Brown and Secretary Mills were for repeal.

Both denied it. Brown's statement of denial revealed a private conversation he and E. A. Van Valkenburg of Philadelphia, had with Borah in which, he said, both opposed repeal.

Borah's Statement

This stirred Borah to give his version of the meeting.

"I said in that conversation that I had been for months undertaking to devise a plan by which you could protect the states which wanted to be dry, and secondly, by which you could prevent the return of the American saloon. That is precisely what I stated to Mr. Brown."

"I said that I had made progress with reference to the question of protecting the states which wanted to be dry, but that I had reached the conclusion that once you legalized the sale of intoxicating liquors in the United States, there was no possible way to prevent return of the American saloon. That is practically word for word what I said."

"Mr. Brown replied: 'I think you are right. Once we legalize the sale of intoxicating liquors, I do not see how you are going to control the method of selling them.' He said: 'I expect to see the return of the saloon and I would rather have it than the present condition of affairs.'"

Borah read then the prohibition plank draft which he had urged in vain upon party leaders prior to the convention. It declared for enforcement of the law until the people chose to change the eighteenth amendment through the election of members to congress.

As for Mills' denial that he was for repeal, Borah quoted a letter written by the cabinet member in 1925. In this Borah said Mills held the eighteenth amendment an "object of scorn and contempt" and "a festering sore on the body politic."

Wisconsin Weather

Fair and cooler tonight; Thursday fair and rather cool.

General Weather

Light showers have occurred during the past 24 hours over the lower lakes and St. Lawrence Valley, due to low pressure which now overlies the upper St. Lawrence Valley. High pressure which overlies the central states this morning is attended by fair weather over the rest of the country. Temperatures are rising this morning over Wisconsin, Iowa and southern Minnesota but elsewhere the changes are unimportant. The highest temperature at Phoenix, Ariz., yesterday was 110 degrees. Continued fair weather is expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with cooler tonight.

The effect of Sweden's abandonment of the gold standard has been much less than had been expected in that country.

THE LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

At Lausanne the European governments have resumed the negotiations which were broken off just about a year ago. They are attempting today to reach those agreements which were meant logically to follow promptly upon the announcement of the Hoover Moratorium last June. They are seeking not only to lay the foundations for a permanent settlement of inter-governmental debts but to prepare the way for other agreements which will arrest and then reverse the tremendous world-wide deflation of prices.

A year ago the intelligent and good will of the nations were not equal to constructive effort on such a scale. The question now is whether the misery of the people is great enough and the danger to the established order visible enough, to have brought men's minds to the point where they are ready for the sacrifices which a program of recovery demands.

During this year of disaster the actions of men everywhere have been governed by a desire to save themselves—even if they have to ruin others in the attempt. Every

Claim Dry Groups Took Back Seats At G. O. P. Meet

Prohibition Leaders at Chicago Seen as "Super-Strategists"

Chicago—So much was heard about the wets and the noise they made during the Republican convention that you may have wondered whether there were any visible signs of the great network of dry organizations which first put prohibition in the constitution and has kept it there since.

There were, although diligent search was required to find dry headquarters. Most of the big shots in the prohibition movement were here as super-strategists for the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, which is a super-organization of all the dry organizations especially formed to fight off the wets in 1932.

At least a score of nationally known officials and working members of that board were active in the wet-dry fight which raged over the Republican platform plank.

Not Even a Sign

Headquarters was established in two modest hotel rooms in one of the older hotels within the Loop, many blocks away from convention headquarters and the hotels which housed the big delegations. One of the dry leaders had known the assistant manager of the hotel, so there they went. These rooms were used only for meeting places and conference rooms. No attempt was made to attract the presence of delegates or the public.

The dries didn't even erect a sign in the downstairs lobby. In fact, as one dry lady explained, the only reason they had a headquarters at all was that "they didn't want to meet for discussion in each other's bedrooms because they were both men and women and that wouldn't be desirable."

There was no question that the hotel bill would be paid, but neither was there any attempt to deny the most dry leaders' yearning for the good old days when millions flowed freely into their coffers. Only a few weeks ago the board of strategy put on, with the anticipated cooperation of Sunday schools and churches everywhere, a drive for "a million dimes" which meant $100,000, with the slogan "Dry dimes will beat wet dollars."

The result was disappointing. Although enough dimes came in to pay rent and other expenses for a while.

Bantam Bishop

Bishop James Cannon, Jr. the little bantam from Virginia who has been so busy fighting in congressional hearing rooms, the newspapers and ecclesiastical councils for the last few years, was one of the most active strategists. He doesn't use any more the crutches which used to brandish when under fire and now seems to walk with ease. He preferred to avoid the limelight at Chicago.

Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington of Ohio appeared to be a dominant force in the group. He is a tall, heavy man who gives an impression of force, a business man who has operated the Anti-Saloon League's publishing house at Westerville and, like so many other business men, recalls better days—especially those days before the Anti-Saloon League bank went bust.

Cherrington, whom many dries used to think would fill the shoes of Wayne B. Wheeler, is chairman of the strategy board, head of the World League Against Alcoholism and boss of the endowed educational section of the league.

Dry Platform Plea

He was the principal dry speaker before the Republican platform committee arguing, like the others, that prohibition was not a political issue, that the constitution should not be monkeyed with except in the existing constitutional method. Let Congress act when ready, Cherrington urged.

Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, an elderly veteran in the cause who remains spry and jolly and always grins at adversity, is executive secretary of the strategy board, which has headquarters in Washington.

He is the one who tried to raise the million dimes. He was often to be seen around the lobbies of convention headquarters, always willing to pose—even with leaders of obscure wet organizations—when the photographers desired.

More gaunt and worried was General Superintendent F. Scott government, every central bank, virtually every commercial bank and every producing interest, millions of individuals have been in a panic. There has been a wild scramble for the exits and more have been trampled than have been saved. In order to "protect" the home market and the domestic currency each government has ruthlessly done its worst by means of tariffs, quotas, and exchange restrictions to stop the exchange of goods. Among banks and investors there has been a frantic shifting about of funds from one international center to another in an hysterical effort to find security. Bankers have been engaged in a wild competition to make their banks liquid and depositors in their flight have been hoarding currency and gold. It has been a year in which an unprecedented scale the rule has been each man for himself and the devil take the rest.

The result of this anarchy has been the most violent contraction of credit within human memory. During the past twelve months more than half of the short-term indebtedness among nations has been called in and a large part of the remainder has become frozen. Inside each nation the destruction of bank loans has been stupendous. In the United States the destruction was proceeding last winter at the rate of 25 per cent per annum.

As the effective money of the world is not gold or silver or paper currency but bank credit, this world wide destruction of bank credit had to bring with it a catastrophic fall in prices. The fall in prices had to bring in its train the destruction of profits. The destruction of profits had to be followed by bankruptcy by wage reductions, and by increasing unemployment. These in their turn brought about such a loss of government revenues as to throw every budget out of balance and to compel the people everywhere to choose either to tax themselves to the limit of endurance or to plunge themselves into complete financial chaos.

The objective, therefore, of any constructive effort is to stop this destruction of bank money and then to promote the reaction of some part of the bank money which has been destroyed. This objective can be attained only by the restoration of confidence in the financial centers of the world; but such a restoration of confidence will not be brought about unless two great things are achieved. The first is the re-establishment of enough peace among the great powers to assure lenders and borrowers that the extension of new credit does not bear the risk of political arrangements and of eventual war. The second is the attainment of arrangements under which there will be sufficient freedom and sufficient stability of trade to make what remains of public and private indebtedness bearable by the debtors.

The first task at Lausanne is to remove the political danger. The problem here is purely European; in fact, it is essentially Franco-German. The reparations question, since Germany cannot or will not pay much of anything, is today a political and not a financial problem. It does not involve the transfer of funds but the balance of political power in Europe. If France and Germany can reach a settlement which promises political stability as between themselves, the Lausanne Conference will have made a successful start. If they cannot reach such a settlement, the conference is a hopeless failure.

The second task at Lausanne, assuming a successful political settlement between Berlin and Paris is to make arrangements by which old debts are made bearable enough to warrant the creation of new debts. This must mean that some part of the old public and private debts will have to be reduced. It must mean, also, that all the nations must give and receive assurances that the existing impossibly high barriers to the payment of debts in good will be reduced and that the trade war will stop. It is here and the supreme test will come as to whether the peoples have learned enough from their suffering in the last twelve months to be willing to make the sacrifices which they rejected last summer.

If they have not, if they cannot yet agree, if the forces of separatism are still too strong, if the statesmen are to be held back by public opinion at home, then the deflation will inevitably continue until, by default, bankruptcy and the shutting down of trade the point has been reached where the old credit structure is completely liquidated and the old creditors and the old debtors have suffered a common ruin.

Herrin Striving To Forget Events Of 10 Years Ago

22 Steam-shovel Operators From Chicago Lost Lives in "Massacre"

BY GILES L. FINDLEY

Herrin, Ill.—(AP)—The flags in Herrin are furled today. The streets are silent and almost deserted. The townsmen and his country neighbor go about their business placidly and comfortably. The conversation is all of the present. There is little jollity and no desire for memories, for Herrin is trying to forget.

Herrin wishes the world would forget, too. Forget that ten years ago this afternoon the streets were crowded, that a parade started as if a picnic, but ended in the cemetery east of the city where the remnants scattered, none of its participants ever to be officially recognized.

Today is the tenth anniversary of the "Herrin massacre." The parade which finished with the killing of 22 men, steam-shovel operators from Chicago who dared to go to dig coal from the Lester strip mine southeast of town.

Ten years ago this afternoon, the streets of Herrin were jammed with thousands of visitors. The mines had closed April 1, 1922, and operators and miners were negotiating for a new wage agreement. For nearly three months, the mines had not worked and men and women and children were hungry.

The strip mine operated by William Lester was trying to work, with a crew of about 30 steam shovel operators from Chicago.

On June 21, 1922, a couple of Herrin lads were shot at by the mine guards. The next afternoon the miners marched to the mine. After a parley, the steam-shovel operators agreed to surrender and return to Chicago.

Operators Surrender

They surrendered. Their hands tied, they started back towards Herrin in the custody of their captors. In a little while alongside the stripped coal pits, the guards gave the prisoners a push and told them to "run."

Hemmed in on all sides, the prisoners started to run but the only way open was toward an eight foot high barbed wire fence. A few of them clambered over and through the wire before the fusillade from the mob took effect.

They wandered around and finally six were caught in the cemetery two miles away. These six were caught within 50 yards of the place where most of them are now buried. Five of them died and the sixth was left for dead, their throats cut with an old rusty pocketknife. Scattered back along their two mile course were the bodies of 17 other men who had been shot and beaten to death. The one who lived was the sixth man in the cemetery. When darkness came, he crawled from the road until finally he obtained assistance out of the country.

The bodies of the others, 22 in all, were gathered up and finally an undertaker in Herrin was prevailed upon to care for them.

More than 200 men were indicated for the crime, but not a single man was ever positively identified as being a member of the mob and no convictions were ever obtained.

Bonus Army Considers Third Party Movement

Washington—(AP)—Plans for a "convention" of the bonus army, to decide whether political activity will be confined to fighting bonus opponents or whether a third party move shall be attempted, were being formulated today by leaders of the veterans.

A split between the legislative committee and the executive officers of the army has developed over the question. The committee recommended a third party attempt if the Democratic convention ignores the bonus issue. Commander

Second for Smith

Congressman Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey (above), the first woman ever to be elected to Congress by the Democratic party, will make the second speech for the nomination of Alfred E. Smith for president at the Democratic National convention in Chicago. Governor Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts will place Smith in nomination.

Building Program Increases in May

Volume Greater Than for April, but is Below May of Last Year

Building in Appleton during May showed an increase over April, but a decided drop from the total of May, 1931, according to the monthly report of the S. W. Strauss company. May's total was $74,900 compared to $27,000 in April, and to $227,500 in May, 1931.

Green Bay, where building in April amounted to $125,885 in April, and $38,365 in May, 1931, had only $36,635 in Oshkosh the May total was $40,224, compared to $24,013 in April and $63,791 in May, 1931. South Milwaukee dropped to the low figure of $2,225, Waukesha to $3,665, Fond du Lac to $6,825, and Kenosha to $8,330.

Other state totals for the month were: Eau Claire, $39,630; Janesville, $23,150; Madison, $115,750; Manitowish, $34,249; Milwaukee, $330,838; Racine, $19,110; Sheboygan, $27,697; Superior, $17,060; Wausau, $23,850; Wauwatosa, $31,845; West Allis, $12,450; and Whitefish Bay, $22,750. The total for Wisconsin was $868,518, as against $1,070,542 in April and $2,614,979 in May last year.

Throughout the country there was a decline of 19.3 per cent from April, and a drop of 69.6 per cent from the total for May, 1931.

in-chief Walter W. Waters and his aides have warned against it.

While little political agitation has been manifest among the thousands hanging on to their camp life here, there has been enough, leaders believe, to require a showdown. The plan is to assemble 500 representatives from the various states which have delegations here and thrash out the matter to a decision in parliamentary fashion.

Building Permits

One building permit was issued Tuesday by John N. Wieland, building inspector. It was granted to J. Wickesberg, 519 E. Brewster st., addition to residence and basement, cost $500.

Hoover, Mapping Strategy, Faces Varied Problems

Must Consider National Funds, Prohibition Rift and Economics

BY BYRON PRICE

Washington—President Hoover begins his second campaign for the presidency with certain important tasks definitely cut out for him.

The wounds left by the prohibition duel at the Chicago convention may not heal easily, and directly or indirectly the leader of the party will find himself obliged to do what he can to allay them.

He will be expected likewise to put before the voters a new, long-time program of rehabilitation, projecting into the future the lessons of two and a half years of economic adversity.

In the matter of internal party affairs alone, he and his advisers will be compelled to do something about campaign financing, for the Republican treasury is badly drained and prospective contributions are low and far between.

These are only a few of the problems Mr. Hoover faces as he accepts once more the standard of Republicanism. Many others of a less pressing character already are on the waiting list, and still more are sure to appear as the campaign warms up.

Prohibition

Those who know the president's mind do not expect him to do much publicly about the prohibition issue.

He talked very little about it in his campaign speeches four years ago, and this time he is on still more delicate ground, after what happened in Chicago.

Through his lieutenants, however, he unquestionably will seek to restore the harmony that was rudely shattered in the process of writing a prohibition plank. It was in this same indirect fashion that he tried hard to keep peace at the time the plank was being written. He was surprised at the outcome, for he had expected no real flare-up over the resubmission proposal as first presented.

The guess of those who have followed the whole course of the question is that he will say something directly in his speech of acceptance, and then depend on quiet negotiation to get reconciliants back into line.

Looking to 1937

For a long time Mr. Hoover has been studying how a long-term economic plan might be applied, not only to cure present conditions but to guard against their return.

He has hinted at the trend of his thoughts once or twice in public utterances, but there is no evidence that a rounded-out program has yet taken shape in his mind.

When he bids for another four years of power, he will come before the country in a slight different character.

He will be looking to March 4, 1937, not merely to the end of the present administration. Without doubt he will discuss national problems in that light, particularly the national problem of a new economic deal.

Filling The Warchest

The question where one can sign money is coming from is more acute than party leaders like to admit. Lean times never conduce to fat political treasuries, especially for the party in power.

One business man of national reputation who raised $200,000 for the Republican party four years ago and whose home town has been particularly hard hit by the depression, has served notice he does not know where to turn for a single dollar now.

Of course it is not that hopeless everywhere, and the general expectation is that Republican manna will arrive, in moderate amount, if the petitioning is sufficiently earnest.

Industrial Commission Schedules 6 Hearings

The Industrial commission of Wisconsin will conduct six hearings at city hall here Thursday, June 30. The schedule includes the cases of Henry Brookmyer against the Fox River Screen company, 9 o'clock; Elmer Ullrich against the Calumet Dutch Packing company, 10 o'clock; Joseph Ducat against the Kimberly Clark corporation, 11 o'clock; David L. Manwaring against the Edison Wood Products Incorporated, 1:30; Mrs. Minnie Smith against the Wisconsin Veterans home, 2 o'clock; and Harvey J. Tenneson against the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, 2:30.

Physical Tests For Girl Scouts Who Plan to Camp

Outdoor Campfire Meeting Scheduled is at 7 O'clock Tonight

Fifty Girl Scouts and campers received physical examinations at Appleton Woman's club Tuesday afternoon in preparation for the first session of camp which opens tomorrow afternoon at Onaway island, Waupaca, under the direction of 14 specialized counselors.

In charge of the examinations were Dr. R. T. McCarthy and Dr. C. E. Ryan, assisted by Miss Florence Finger, camp nurse.

All girls attending either the first or second session of camp will meet at 7 o'clock this evening on the lawn of the Woman's club for an outdoor campfire and camp rally. This will be a get-together meeting for the scouts, campers and counselors, at which camp rules and procedure will be explained. Girls other than scouts are eligible to attend the Girl Scout camp, although the first session is completely filled.

Girls who have no transportation to Waupaca are asked to make arrangements at the Girl Scout office at the Appleton Woman's club. The camp launch will leave the Waupaca dock at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon for the island camp.

Two counselors, Miss Doris Peters and Miss Esther Ronning, also local scout leaders, will arrive at camp Thursday evening to begin a detailed camp course at the Girl Scout regional camp at Indianapolis. Miss Peters will have charge of pioneering and Miss Ronning handicraft.

Among the interesting camp projects this year is a Camp Onaway patch work quilt which all campers will assist in making. This and other individual handicraft projects such as German silver bracelets, wooden frames and objects, cellophane belts and gingham animals will be on display after the camp sessions are over.

Miss Dorothy Calnin, local director, will have charge of the camp with Mrs. S. C. Shannon, camp dietitian, the assistant director.

Garner's Stand Helps Chances For Nomination

Politicians Trying to Estimate Results of Speaker's Statement

Washington—(AP)—Washington political appraisers who weeks ago assigned Speaker John N. Garner's presidential chances to the outer darkness, revised their ideas today, estimating the potential consequence of his dramatic anti-prohibition and willing-to-run announcement.

The Texan timed and staged his declaration yesterday in a manner that hardly could have been surpassed for effectiveness. It hit just on the rising tide of final pre-convention tumult, with the anti-Roosevelt preparations in Chicago at fever heat. He had been absent from the congressional picture for ten days, kept to his bed by illness. The house was all but done with its work for the session, his job as speaker, to which he ascribed earlier silence, virtually completed for the time.

Those who watched him had always expected him to say yes or no just before the convention or at a support given him for the Democratic nomination by Texas or California. But, so much had his presidential stock gone down after the house dealing with vital legislation twice burst the bounds of control exercised by him and his group of leaders, that they were not prepared for what happened yesterday.

Newspapermen went to his noon conference—a daily fixture since he became speaker—to ask him how he felt after his severe bronchial attack and maybe to glean a word or two on the unemployment relief question, or some other legislative issue. Almost anything in fact but his militant words inviting the presidential nomination.

Impressive Platform

The extreme definiteness of the entire platform he enunciated, with the declaration that prohibition "ought to be repealed," that the government must provide work to keep people from starving at any cost, that tariff walls must come down, that the cost of government must be cut one-third, and that war debts must be collected to the extent of the foreign nations' ability to pay, did impress both friend and foe.

Garner's supporters in the past have argued that he was exceedingly "available"—the favorite political phrase to describe one against whom none had complaint to make. He had said nothing on prohibition, standing on his votes against adoption of the 18th amendment but for enforcement laws once the constitution was changed. Also he had not drawn down the "pork barrel" accusation flung at him for the diffuse public work bill he eventually drafted and put through the house.

With the exception of ultra-dries in his train, his supporters today believed the bold stand against prohibition would be helpful. And even the dries did not waver in their support.

Counties Seek Highway Change

Brown Outagamie-co Committees Will Go to Madison July 1

Outagamie-co and Brown-co highway committees will confer with the state highway department at Madison, July 1, on the proposed re-routing of highway 41 from McCarthy's Crossing through Wrights-town, along the Fox river to DePere.

The proposed change has been sought several times by Wrights-town people and also has the backing of Brown-co authorities. The change would shorten the distance between the crossing and DePere by about three miles. The present route is 12 miles long and the proposed one nine miles.

Last year when the state proposed an underpass under the Chicago and Northwestern Railway tracks this side of DePere, objection was raised on the grounds it was unnecessary and rerouting of the road would eliminate both McCarthy crossing of the Northwestern and the one where the underpass has been built. The state refused to consider the change at that time.

Plan to Cut Salaries To Reduce Tax Costs

Fond du Lac (AP)—A committee representing members of the Fond du Lac Tax Relief association Tuesday was charged with drawing up a proposed salary schedule for county officers looking toward reductions in county government costs to reduce taxes.

The committee was appointed at a meeting of the association which went on record favoring 30 per cent salary reductions for county officers and elimination of the offices of county highway commissioner, county engineer, county agricultural agent and supervising teachers. The meeting also recommended abolishing the rural normal school for three years.

Petitions signed by 629 farmers asking reduced valuations on farm property also were made public.

"STRAP" BOUGHT AT AUCTION

What is believed to be a real Stradivarius violin was bought recently at an auction sale in Oshkosh, N. Z., by a local attorney. The instrument, which belonged to the late W. Baucke of Oshkosh, a well-known New Zealand author. A careful examination has revealed the name Antoni Stradivarius engraved on the inside of the violin, which was bought by Baucke's father in Bavaria about 85 years ago. The present owner has had the instrument examined by an expert in Auckland, and its measurements correspond exactly with those of Stradivarius' Messiah model. The instrument is hand-made and is stated to possess a particularly beautiful tone. The present commercial value of a genuine Messiah model is from $12,500 to $15,000.

Soska Named President of Polish Group

Eleanor Deka Elected Vice President as Convention Closes

Albert F. Soska was elected president of the Polish Alma Mater society at the closing session of the convention at Menasha Wednesday afternoon. Eleanor Deka was named vice president, Dr. John J. Liss, second vice president; Paul Hadamik, general secretary; and John Kozlowski, treasurer. All are from Chicago.

Mrs. Viola Wiese of Menasha was elected one of the vice presidents for Wisconsin. The other vice president for this state is Walter Polaczuk.

Directors are Walter J. Imborski, Leo Meger, Paul Nawrot, Francis Poklaczek, Andrew Murzyn, Marie Rutkowska, Francis Bieschke, Rose Barys, Helen Ratajczak and Bernice Tobolska.

The vice presidents for Indiana are Rose Jorank and Michael J. Koscielniak; for Illinois, Joseph Walerowicz and Mrs. M. Szumowski; and for Massachusetts, Vincent Skonieczny and Stephen Miduch.

The election of officers concluded convention activities which have extended over a period of three days. Delegates were to leave Menasha for Chicago on a special train at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Chaplain is named.

At the regular session Tuesday morning Miss Bona of Chicago was named chaplain of the national organization and the Rt. Rev. T. Lignan named vice chaplain. It also was decided to offer the Rt. Rev. Bishop Paul Rhode of Green Bay an honorary membership and to offer the Rt. Rev. Stanislaus Bona of Rock Island, Neb., the position of honorary chaplain.

Short talks were given by Alderman Joseph Rostenkowski of Chicago, Mrs. Mary Kuyasak, editor of the Polish Women's Alliance periodical, and by Barbara Pluchinski, vice president of the Polish Women's alliance for the state of Wisconsin.

Changes in the constitution were the basis of general discussions Tuesday morning and afternoon and nomination of officers featured the evening session. After considerable debate and rejection of the plan to have a change in the constitution, which would make eligible for the office of general secretary, was approved.

The Polish convention activities opened Sunday evening with a parade and reception of delegates and continued with regular sessions Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Political High Mass with Bishop Paul Rhode of Green Bay officiating and special music by the St. Patrick's choir of Menasha was one of the features of the opening session Monday morning. About 100 official delegates and a number of visitors and members of local organizations were in attendance at the convention.

Smith in Favor Of Repeal Plank

fits of the bootlegger into legitimate taxes."

Chatting informally then with newspapermen, Smith said the half of 1 per cent provision in the Volstead act was arbitrary and was put there by the Anti-Saloon league.

Ready To Lead

He added that if a proposal for its repeal was not submitted to the resolutions committee he would submit one himself to be the nominee.

"Who is going to be the nominee?" Smith was asked.

"The convention will decide," he said.

"Who is your preference?"

"Alfred R. Smith."

"Who have you picked for your running mate?" Smith was asked.

"I haven't thought that out yet," he replied.

Smith reiterated that talk about Roosevelt being nominated on the first ballot "a little ballyhoo."

"I thought you described that in New York as a bedtime story?" some one suggested.

"Well, that is a kind of modified ballyhoo," Smith replied.

He refused to predict how many votes in the New York delegation would give him.

Asked about his part in the "Stop Roosevelt" movement, Smith said: "There is nothing to that. I'm combatting a Stop Smith movement that commenced one year and a half ago."

morning while cutting rails for the Chicago and Northwestern railway company. A piece of steel which struck him in the arm was removed at a doctor's office.

"Why do you oppose Roosevelt?" he was asked.

"I want myself nominated," the former governor answered.

"Who is your second choice?"

"I haven't got any. I am for myself alone."

For Two-Thirds Rule

Smith said he did not believe the convention would abrogate the two-thirds nominating rule. Asked if he would support the nominee of the convention, he said it was not necessary to "talk about that at this time."

"Will you urge an economic plank?"

"I can't tell until I see the product of the committee."

Smith said he had appointed Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, as his floor manager.

"He leads the grand march," the 1928 nominee added with a grin.

Asked what the Democrats should do on the whole to assure success on November, Smith replied:

"Write an honest, straightforward and clear platform and nominate me."

"How many ballots will that take?"

"That depends on how fast the delegates can see."

Smith said it depended entirely upon developments between now and the first day of the convention next Monday whether he would address the convention on any issue.

Against Cash Bonus

He said he was opposed to a cash bonus plank, but that he did not care to state the reasons at this time.

"What about Speaker Garner's statement (urging prohibition repeal)?"

"The more the merrier," Smith said, concluding the interview.

Smith said he favored J. Edgar Hoover for permanent chairman and would take the floor if necessary in the fight to nominate him. He added, however, that he believed Shouse would be elected without a contest on the floor.

He opened his press conference in a manner reminiscent of his 1928 campaign days. After announcing he had a statement, he shook hands with numerous friends among the newspapermen while the copies were being passed out.

Caretaker Fights Band of Ghouls at Slain Man's Grave

Chicago—(P)—A band of ghouls apparently intent upon robbing the grave of George "Red" Barker, labor racketeer and public enemy recently slain by machine gunners, engaged in a pistol fight with the caretaker of Mount Carmel cemetery early this morning. The ghouls escaped, but not until they had shot several holes in the caretaker's automobile, stopping pursuit.

The police advanced the theory that perhaps the intruders were seeking valuable papers or jewelry buried with the gangster. They pointed out that an automobile truck in which the man escaped could have been used to carry away Barker's casket.

The number of men in the band was not learned. Joseph Sobol, 50, the caretaker, came upon them shortly after midnight while driving his automobile truck in the vicinity of the Barker grave. They were bending over Barker's grave when Sobol asked them what they were doing. They answered with a half dozen shots. Sobol drew his own pistol and fired back at the hoodlums while hiding behind his truck.

Mount Carmel cemetery is situated in suburban Hillside, several miles west of Chicago's city limits.

Dismiss Actions In Federal Court

Former Bartender at Lamp Lite Inn Was Sought For "Jumping" Bond

Action against Lester Kook, Detroit, Mich., former bartender at the Lamp Lite Inn in Calumet-co, who vanished after being arrested for prohibition law violations, was dismissed by Judge F. A. Geiger in federal court, Milwaukee, Tuesday. Actions against 12 others also were dismissed.

According to word received here Kook and 12 others, charged with dry law violations "jumped" their bonds. Eight signed their own recognizance bonds and five had friends sign. There was no security behind any of the bonds. Others are Alfred C. Boie, arrested at Clintonville, James M. McGrath, arrested at Delavan Lake; John Kuepe at Racine, and Joseph Ball, Peter Janos and Joseph Muris, arrested in a raid on a still at Niagara.

Kook was arrested here last summer when federal prohibition officers raided the Lamp Lite Inn, operated by Elmer Johnston, Appleton. Johnston was sentenced to the House of Correction in Milwaukee.

French Ponder on Herriot's Course Toward Germany

Conservatives Are Worried About Future Policies and Actions

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

Paris—(P)—Frenchmen are wondering whether the swing to the left as manifested in Edouard Herriot's new cabinet will result in more conciliation in German relations, and whether the victorious radical socialists will cooperate with Hitlerism.

French conservatives, shunted into a corner, are a bit nervous about the new German elections of July 31. They see danger in Hitlerism and, in the long run, apprehend war.

But some French newspapers have displayed articles which suggest that France should try to look at Hitlerism as a bulwark against communism which, although stoutly nationalistic, is not necessarily a pro-war movement.

Premier Seeks Peace

Herriot is a pronounced peace advocate and a stout supporter of the League of Nations. He believes in developing international cooperation and in talking softly to Germany, but apparently stands behind the French thesis of disarmament which calls for the creation of an international military, naval and air force.

Herriot acknowledges that he must keep ever in mind the rather general French apprehension that France may again be invaded by Germany.

One of the most striking posters of the campaign which put him in power was a long, wide streamer suspended from a high building on the Boulevard des Italiens blazoning that France has been four times invaded and that armament reduction must be contingent upon the creation of systems guaranteeing her inviolability.

Though some Frenchmen think German Hitlerism should be negotiated with, the conservative forces of the nation regard the spread of Hitlerism as a potential danger to France. They keep saying it took almost the whole world to beat Germany in 1918, and that at present France has no powerful country upon whom she can count if a new aggressive war is launched against her.

Poincare In Warning

Ex-Premier Raymond Poincare, who sent a French army of occupation into the Ruhr, has come out in a statement which reflects these French apprehensions.

Commenting on the memoirs of Gustav Stresemann, late German foreign minister, Poincare insists they prove that even this heralded man of peace never made the slightest concession to France. Poincare said:

"He didn't talk like Hitler, but he demonstrated that even the most moderate Germans really think like other Germans, and that we should have no illusions about the feelings of our neighbors. We must keep our eyes open."

Damage Suit May Continue 2 Days

Combined Locks Child Asks $25,000 of Appleton Chiropractor

The $25,000 damage suit of Ervin Janssen, Combined Locks, through his guardian and father, Herman Janssen, will continue another day or two, it was stated this morning by municipal court attaches where the suit is being tried. Janssen is suing J. A. Panneke, Appleton chiropractor.

Witnesses on the stand since the case started Monday afternoon have been the boy's parents, teachers, neighbors and an Appleton eye specialist. The specialist testified about fitting the child with glasses, the parents, teachers and neighbors told about the boy's activities and physical condition previous to the time he became ill and was unable to get about.

The Janssen boy was ill with spinal meningitis when five years old. Recovery left the child slow mentally and chiropractic treatments were given him. The parents allege that the treatments resulted in a general breakdown in the child's health. This is denied by Panneke.

Among the numbers were "Wonderland" and "Favorites" by Victor Herbert, and the "Rocking Horse Parade." The concerts are played every Tuesday evening.

Boston — (P) — Senora Leonora Calles, wife of general Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, today lay critically ill under the care of one of America's foremost brain specialists.

She was brought to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital last night, ostensibly for the purpose of undergoing an operation for a tumor on the brain, and was immediately placed under the care of Dr. Harvey Cushing, former professor of the Harvard medical school and noted brain specialist.

Dr. Cushing made a preliminary examination soon after her arrival at the hospital, then left to prepare for an extensive examination today. He made no mention of an operation.

Senora Calles was accompanied here by General Calles; Dr. Joseph Manuel Puig Cassauranc, Mexican ambassador to the United States; her step-daughter, Senora Joseph Jordan Eller, and two Mexican physicians.

Scores Atheistic Doctrines in U.S. Schools in Talk

MacTavish is Principal Speaker at Forest Junction Institute

Special to Post-Crescent

Forest Junction — Scoring the atheistic tendencies which have invaded our higher institutions of learning, and the atheistic doctrines promulgated by instructors in our colleges, the Rev. D. T. MacTavish, Waldo, formerly with the Milwaukee Rescue mission, addressed a mass meeting at the Sunday afternoon service of the annual Francis Asbury Epworth league institute in session at the Methodist camp grounds at Wolfmeyer's corner this week.

The outstanding universities of our country including Harvard and Yale, he pointed out, had been planned by churches, but have fallen from the high estate where the progenitors had placed them. He spoke on the Apostle Paul's writing to the ancient Corinthians, relating his experience with the Jews who sought a sign and Greeks who sought wisdom, and proclaimed the transforming power of Christianity in human lives, which the emoluments of the world cannot supply. The maudlin sympathy of Clarence Darrow, he said, may save the criminal in court, but cannot convert him.

Music Program

Special music Sunday afternoon was supplied by a Sheboygan choir singing "Send Out Thy Light" and a men's quartet, also from Sheboygan, singing "Behold the Man of Galilee." The mass meeting was preceded by a young people's meeting conducted by Sadao Arai, a Japanese student receiving his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Chicago this year, and who is an outstanding worker on the religious education board of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The encampment opened Saturday evening with a period of church dramatics following the registration of delegates. The Epworth league from Manitowoc gave a play entitled "The Miracle," the league from Fond du Lac presented a comedy "Whose Money?" A camp fire service concluded Saturday evening's opening, conducted by the Rev. A. H. Otto of West Bend, dean of the institute.

The Rev. Louis Hesser, professor of theology at the Reformed Mission at Plymouth, delivered the sermon on Sunday forenoon, and the Rev. Charles A. Briggs, Appleton, Manitowoc is the institute registrar.

Polzin and Dapin were the batteries for Marion. This is the seventh game the Marion boys have lost without a win. Clintonville in the same league has won all its games. Wittenberg will play here next Sunday.

Half Million At Eucharist Meet in Erin

31st International Congress is Launched Today in Dublin

Dublin —(AP)— Dublin became a cathedral of heroic size today for the formal opening of the thirty-first international Eucharistic congress.

Out of the half million or more people from 25 nations who are here for the great religious jubilation, only 2,400 could get into the pro-cathedral as first-hand witnesses of the colorful opening spectacle.

Loudspeakers carried the words and the songs, if not the color, to hundreds of thousands of others massed in the streets outside.

Before the procession formed the bishops and other clergy not concerned in the ceremony, assembled in their places within the cathedral, which was decorated with palms.

The procession, forming across the street in a school made temporarily a robing room, was led by Bishop Heylen of Namur, the president of the permanent congress committee.

He was followed by Bishop Byrne of Dublin, sponsor of this congress, by Cardinal Lauri, the papal legate, and then by the ten other cardinals and their suites.

Archbishop Byrne, as sponsor of the congress, was the first speaker on the opening program, followed by Bishop Heylen and the cardinal legate.

Tonight at 12:30 a. m. a solemn high pontifical mass will be celebrated in the pro-cathedral, and another tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

During the day tomorrow there will be sectional meetings of the various nationalities attending the congress. The Americans will meet in the lord mayor's residence.

At 8 p. m. tomorrow there will be a gigantic mass meeting of men at Phoenix park at which the cardinal legate will preside.

THE SOCIALIST PLATFORM

What is a Socialist and what are the principles of Socialism?

Perhaps few words are more roundly misused, or applied to greater shades of meaning than the word "socialist."

Soviet Russia calls itself an experiment in socialism. Chile says it is embarking upon a socialistic ideal. Hitler, who is certainly a monarchist and would return Wilhelm to the throne tomorrow if he could, calls his organization the National Socialist party.

We don't know which organization may be Simon-pure socialism, and perhaps it isn't very important. But we who pass laws to protect a company's right to a trade name, should provide some means to prevent purposeful deception. Those who honestly possess a political philosophy are at least entitled to the right of truthfully presenting it.

Wisconsin Socialists recently followed the generally accepted standards of their party in proposing a further entry of the government into business, finance and industry, including a state-owned bank for Wisconsin and a state-owned cement plant.

The advent of the government in business may be treated from many different angles. From the time the United States started under the constitution in 1789 there has been a widespread and persistent opposition to this theory. Each side often presents an example. A municipally owned electric plant at Kaukauna may be a success, a similar plant in Keokuk may be a failure. Examples are not always satisfactory because conditions and personnel alter greatly. The Socialists may theorize about what might be accomplished by a state bank, their opponents may answer that it was fortunate for Wisconsin it didn't have a state bank for the Capital Times to run.

But when we get down to fundamentals we find that the Socialists cannot advance any such plan without either confiscating property or making the people put up the money to buy it. The necessary funds for either a bank or a cement plant or anything else must come from taxation.

It is widely claimed that taxation which compels the people to become stockholders in a business venture is not justifiable excepting where it may be clearly said that the venture cannot fail, that is one concerned with an indispensable part of life. A plant for the furnishing of water is indispensable. Whether one for gas or electricity comes in the same class is fairly debatable. A bank, if not indispensable, is nearly so. At least under our modern life a currency is necessary and credit transactions must take place. The same line of reasoning cannot apply to a cement plant. The latter may be an excellent investment just now when concrete roads are the order of the day and yet would suffer materially if the other socialist plank to divert the gasoline tax elsewhere, be followed.

Only a few years ago we thought street railways and interurbans excellent investments, and so did the Socialists. If man's ingenuity, now aimed at harnessing the tides, succeeds, hydro-electric plants will be a drug on the market.

So the question really is, what right has the state to force its people to invest their money in cement plants or any other venture that may fail?

And if we plunge further than the indispensable things then there is no good reason why the government should not purchase all industries; and when they are acquired take over all farms; and when they are organized commandeer all homes and apartments.

Despite the serious flaws that have developed in many industries and in banking, government-run-everything, and politics running the government, will certainly not make for improvement. As it is we have the great majority of our business affairs well run. Under socialism, if we elected careless administrators, quite a common human fault, there might result utter collapse.

"WANTED"

Josiah G. Holland wrote some lines which are appropriate in every campaign, although there is nothing of a political color about them.

Just suppose, and regardless of any political party, that for two or three campaigns the people selected those men for office whom they really believed down in their hearts were the most fit to serve? The government wouldn't be perfect because men are not perfect but the improvement would be astonishing. Mr. Holland's lines would be well for every voter to keep in mind:

"God gives us men. The time demands Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and willing hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun crowned, who live

EXEMPTING MORE PROPERTY

The Democratic state convention at Green Bay went on record as favoring the exemption from taxation of all farms and homes costing less than $5,000 for a period of three years.

We wonder if anyone has figured out just how extensive this gesture of benevolence might become, or whether we wish to inaugurate a system of preference, even if not very bad in itself, that may grow into a mountain. Exemptions from taxation always do grow greater. The property already exempted is a material reason why taxpayers are groaning today.

We would be surprised if a great many townships could not be found in which this exemption would exclude perhaps half the property, and therefore double the taxes on the remaining property. Perhaps the exemption would go even further than that. It would exempt a $5,000 farm or home, free of debt, and increase the taxes on a $6,000 one heavily mortgaged. It would give assistance where none was needed and often withhold aid where desperately required.

Certainly it would be serious enough to greatly increase taxes upon other properties, necessitate higher rentals for duplexes, apartments and business property, and another increase in the charges that business tenants must make.

We doubt whether anything should be exempted from taxation, but certainly private property held for gain, whether immediately salable or not, should not be permitted to go without paying a toll to the government that insures its safety and makes possible an eventual profit out of it.

Under the circumstances which the country now faces it might be advisable to abolish penalties and reduce interest charges to a minimum. It would be proper to so delay either certificate sales or the issuance of deeds as far as the government could stand it, but exemption of property from taxation, abatement of anyone who really owns, of his legitimate share of the cost of the existence of the government, does not look like the part of wisdom as it certainly is not the part of principle.

GOLD EXPORTS END

The announcement is made by New York bankers that any further drain on American gold reserves is not to be expected. This movement, which for a time caused uneasiness in financial circles, has now stopped and concludes one of the most remarkable achievements in financial history—the repayment by the United States since 1929 of all but $700,000,000 of the $3,000,000,000 of short-term funds invested in this country by foreign central banks, governments and private interests.

Since the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain on September 21, 1931 the withdrawal of foreign balances in the United States has been especially rapid. In many quarters, both here and abroad, this unprecedented movement had the effect of casting doubt upon the value of the American dollar. Yet these enormous foreign balances have been paid with a net loss of but $400,000,000 from the monetary gold stock on hand in the Fall of 1929, so that today the gold reserve of the United States stands impregnable at nearly four billion dollars—an amount exceeding by ample margin the legal reserve requirements for United States currency.

The withdrawal of foreign credits and the consequent drain on our gold stock has been due to foreign dislike of the American financial situation, the necessity for European governments and banks to protect themselves against their own strained conditions of credit, as well as fear of the passage of unwise measures introduced in congress.

Now that gold exports from this country are virtually at an end, with plenty of gold left on hand, anyone who has had occasion to doubt the value of the American dollar may rest assured that it stands securely entrenched against any foreign attack. Any depreciation it may suffer henceforth can come only from unsound and unwarranted legislation within the United States. Its fate lies in our own hands.

THE LITTLE COUNTRY DRUG STORE

Liniments for horses,
Medicines for cows;
Oils to rub on women folk
To soothe their aching brows.
Little country drugstore,
Not like those in town,
Where is heard the rattle
Of many a silken gown.
Remedies in bottles
For bruises, hurts and sprains.
Paincases commended
For human aches and pains.
Tonics for the poultry
When hens refuse to lay
Put out where city druggists
Have perfumes on display.
Cures for every ailment
To which the flesh is heir;
For mothers in the country
Have little time to spare.
And so the village drugstore
A hundred needs supplies,
Including soothing syrups
When'er the baby cries.
The city drugstore gleams
With countless pretty things,
And all the trifling trinkets
Which love of beauty brings.
But still the country drugstore
By every inch of space
Proclaims the cares and problems
The wives of farmers face.

The plan of Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, to give congress power by constitutional amendment to override supreme court decisions holding its act unconstitutional caused another flurry that day in the senate.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

RESULT OF STRAW VOTE ON IMMUNITY VERSUS RESISTANCE

Quite a while ago readers of this column were invited to give their ideas about the difference, if any, between resistance and immunity. The conductor has given his ideas so often that it seems unnecessary to repeat that he maintains there is no such thing as resistance (he would take some such attitude, wouldn't he, old timers?) Well, the keen interest and the clear insight our readers evince in their letters on this subject would astonish and enlighten many of the gentlemen who purport to be expert in gauging reader intelligence. I hoped for a mere straw vote. The actual result was a symposium. In the course of the past decade I have collected many interesting and instructive letters and clipping-relating to "resistance" but this particular symposium, I think indicates that adults can be re-educated in respect to hygiene.

Curiously enough the set of books offered as a prize or acknowledgment for the best contribution is awarded to a physician, but he spurns the offer, as you shall see:

Dear Dr. Brady:
Upon reading your article "It is Fine to Be Immune But How Can You Tell When Your Resistance is Up?" I am indeed "in fine fettle for a little argument." Nor do I care for the prize; let the books go to some poor fellow who does not know the difference between immunity and resistance.

You could not expect one ill of acute appendicitis to possess an immunity to the disease, but if he is destined to recover he must have a measurable degree of leukocytosis, which is the body's means and method of RESISTANCE. Let the appendicitis sufferer have a high temperature but a low leukocyte count, and unless surgery comes to his relief within a few hours it is goodbye, because his RESISTANCE is down.

If a pneumonia patient has done fairly well up to the time of the crisis with a leukocyte count of approximately 15,000, and then shows a marked diminution in the leukocyte count (blood count), tell the family, not the patient, to prepare for the worst, and you will not have to eat your words. If the leukocytosis is maintained in blood counts after the crisis, you are safe in assuring the family that all is well. The RESISTANCE is measured by the white cell count.

Favorable cases of pulmonary tuberculosis while not showing a general leukocytosis (recruits only balancing casualties) do show lymphocytosis, indicating that fresh young soldiers are being recruited to take the place of the older fighters, the polymorphonuclear leukocytes or phagocytes that have fallen in the fray. The reverse is true of unfavorable cases.

You accept the theory of antibodies in the blood, or at least you did some years ago when we had a debate about counter-irritation. That theory, or whatever it is, explains immunity. An attack of measles protects against another attack. This is not true of pneumonia; therefore the necessity for two methods of protection on the part of Mother Nature.

You cannot fence out the crows from your poultry farm, therefore you must resist them. RESISTANCE. You can fence out your neighbor's cattle, then fold your arms against their ravages—IMMUNITY.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,
J. F. G. — M. D.

All good sound scientific facts—except the allusion to crows and cattle. You can set up a lifeline figure with a moving shotgun which occasionally pops and emits a cloud of burr gunpowder, and that will keep your poultry yard or cornfield immune from the depredations of the crows—IMMUNITY. And if you fold your arms too snugly after fencing the cabbage patch the crows may break through your barrier and gobble half the cabbage before you can untangle your arms and shoot 'em away—IMMUNITY MAINTAINED.

Nothing in the doctor's unassailable argument warrants the silly advice half-baked health authorities offer the unsophisticated public about keeping up "resistance," however. That's the nub of the argument. These opera bouffe health authorities can sound off as much as they please about "resistance" because nobody knows anything about that anyway, but they're pretty darn careful how they talk about immunity, because we know what that is.

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

THE callopie was going strong and soon some small girls came along. "Let's have a dance," cried Windy. "I am clever on my feet."

"We've met these little girls, so we can be as friendly as can be. I'll dance now, with the one in blue, 'cause she looks very sweet."

He then walked right up to the girl and said, "Pray, miss, let's have a whirl at dancing right here on the ground. I'm sure we'll get along."

"We'll dance a waltz, just you and I. Come on! At least we both can try. I'll get my wee friend Duncy, now, to play a waltz-time song."

Soon off they danced. 'Twas very sweet! The girl exclaimed, "This is a treat. Your dancing is just fine, young man. I like to dance with you."

The other Tynymites watched a bit. Then Coppy said, "I'm feeling fit to do a little dance, myself, so that's just what I'll do."

He walked up to a pretty miss and, like a gentleman, said, "This is our dance, little maiden. We will get along all right."

When Coppy started whirling round, some snappy music Duncy found. He played it and the dancers had to dance with all their might.

All of a sudden came a shout. "What is this dancing all about?" A circus cop came running up and eyed each Tynymite. Then he grabbed Coppy by the arm and said, "You'll likely come to harm. You shouldn't dress up like a cop, because you have no right."

"Poor Coppy! He was scared. And then, he heard the others laugh again. The show cop joined the laughter and gave Coppy quite a poke. "Aw, don't you start to worry, son," said he. "The whole thing was in fun. I'm just a circus cop, but I must have my little joke." (Copyright 1932 NEA Service, Inc.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Down in Union Square the other night, a grandiloquent curstone speaker waved his right hand toward Broadway and shouted to a small circle of auditors:

"When New York was a Dutch colony, that street of sham and shame was called de Heere Straat.

"Why not revive that name for Broadway? The whole town's in Dutch again."

The cool May evening had spurred my perennial mood for wandering about the once glamorous, now tarnished scenes of the Fourteenth-street sector.

His was an unscheduled, spontaneous talk, nothing uncommon to New York's red square. Orations flare up all about there every night. Most of them are radical treatments of social issues. The rest of them are rambling talks about any subjects under the sun, from judgment day remorse to rheumatism cures.

My chosen orator was beginning to tell the crowd something of his own past, when he was in the pit in Ohio, but it began to sprinkle. His audience melted away and I turned to another group.

On the wide pavement, shabby men crowd about the more informal debaters who don't even bother to take the stump. These are wise-crackers on social problems who challenge all comers to personal word duels. Their heterogeneous following presses close, straining for an ear.

Rain fell harder and the pack of humanity loosened. Curious to catch just a word of an argument before fleeing the wet, I pushed to the center of the ring. A sawed off little egg, no more than four feet tall, turned to me:

"D'yez wante argue 'bout what I sed?" he bawled, yet rather good-humoredly. His disciples roared as they retreated under the downpour.

The short one himself awaited no response, and there I was, with my first opportunity for verbal championing of Great Causes all washed up.

Must Reduce Arms Burden, Hoover Says

President Urges Adoption of "Broad and Definite Method"

Washington—(AP)—The president's statement advocating a reduction of one-third of the world's armaments follows in full:

"The delegations at the world conference on disarmament at Geneva are engaged in discussions as to methods by which a more comprehensive effort can be made toward disarmament.

The following is the substance of instructions which have been given by the president to the American delegation for guidance in the discussions which are now occupying them.

"The time has come when we should cut through the brush and adopt some broad and definite method of reducing the overwhelming burden of armament which now lies upon the toilers of the world. This would be the most important world step that could be taken to expedite economic recovery. We must make headway against the mutual fear and friction arising out of war armament which kill human confidence throughout the world. We can still remain practical in maintaining an adequate self-defense among all nations; we can add to the assurances of peace and yet save the people of the world from ten to fifteen billions of wasted dollars during the next ten years.

Lays Down Principles

"I propose that the following principles should be our guide:

"First, the Kellogg-Briand pact, to which we are all signatories, can only mean that the nations of the world have agreed that they will use their arms solely for defense.

"Second: This reduction should be carried out not only by broad general cuts in armaments by increasing the comparative power of defense through decreases in the power of the attack.

"Third: The armaments of the world have grown up in general mutual relation to each other. And, speaking generally, such relatively should be preserved in making reductions.

"Fourth: The reductions must be real and positive. They must effect economic relief.

"Fifth: There are three problems to deal with—land forces, air forces and naval forces. They are all interconnected. No part of the proposals which I make can be dissociated one from the other.

"Based on the principles, I propose that the arms of the world should be reduced by nearly one-third.

"Land Forces. In order to reduce the offensive character of all land forces as distinguished from their defensive character, I propose the adoption of the presentation already made at the Geneva conference for the abolition of all tanks, all chemical warfare and all large mobile guns. This would not prevent the establishment or increase of fixed fortifications of any character for the defense of frontiers and seacoasts. It would give an increased relative strength to such defenses as compared with the attack.

Would Cut Armies

"I propose furthermore that there should be a reduction of one-third in strength of all land armies over and above the so-called police component.

"The land armaments of many nations are considered to have two functions. One is the maintenance of internal order in connection with the regular peace forces of the country. The strength required for this purpose has been called the 'police component.' The other function is defense against foreign attack. The additional strength required for this purpose has been called the 'defense component.' While it is not suggested that these different components should be separated, it is necessary to consider this contention as to functions in proposing a practical plan of reduction in land forces. Under the treaty of Versailles and the other peace treaties, the armies of Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria were reduced to a size deemed appropriate for the maintenance of internal order, Germany being assigned 100,000 troops for a population of approximately 65,000,000 people. I propose that we should accept for all nations a basic police component of soldiers proportionate to the average which was thus allowed Germany and these other states. This formula, with necessary corrections for powers having colonial possessions, should be sufficient to provide for the maintenance of internal order by the nations of the world. Having analyzed these two components in this fashion, I propose as stated above that there should be a reduction of one-third in the strength of all land armies over and above the police component.

Against Aerial Bombs

"Air Forces. All bombing planes to be abolished. This will do away with the military possessions of types of planes capable of attacks upon civil populations and should be coupled with total prohibition of all bombardment from the air.

"Naval Forces. I propose that the treaty number and tonnage of battleships shall be reduced by one-third; that the treaty tonnage of aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers shall be reduced by one-fourth; that the treaty tonnage of submarines shall be reduced by one-third, and that no nation shall retain a submarine tonnage greater than 35,000.

"The relative strength of naval arms in battleships and aircraft carriers, as between the five leading naval powers, was fixed by the treaty of Washington. The relative strength in cruisers, destroyers and submarines was fixed, as between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, by the treaty of London. For the purposes of this proposal, it is suggested that the French and Italian strength in cruisers and destroyers be calculated as though they had joined in the treaty of London on a basis approximating the so-called accord of March 1, 1931. There are various technical considerations connected with these naval discussions which will be presented by the delegation.

Effect Of Program

"General. The effect of this plan would be to effect an enormous saving in cost of new construction and replacements of naval vessels. It would also save large amounts in the operating expense in all nations of land, sea and air forces. It would greatly reduce offensive strength compared to defense strength in all nations.

"These proposals are simple and direct. They call upon all nations to contribute something. The contribution here proposed will be relative and mutual. I know of nothing that would give more hope for humanity today than the acceptance of such a program with such minor changes as might be necessary. It is folly for the world to go on breaking its back over military expenditure and the United States is willing to take its share of responsibility by making definite proposals that will relieve the world."

Nurse Describes Her Affair With Aimee's Husband

Faces Cross-examination Today in $200,000 Breach of Promise Suit

Los Angeles—(AP)—Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, who pictured the husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton as a fiery lover, faced cross-examination today on the story of impassioned love scenes she told yesterday from the witness stand.

Before his marriage to the evangelist, the 30-year-old nurse testified in her $200,000 breach of promise suit, David Hutton, choir singer in his wife's temple, told her marriage was a man-made institution that could be ignored at times.

"He made violent love to me," Miss St. Pierre told the jury. "You must be a wife to me to prove your love," he insisted. He held me so tightly. He smothered me with kisses."

In the midst of her story the nurse fell from the witness stand in a faint. She continued her story of her relations with the singer only with the aid of smelling salts.

So intimate were the scenes she described, the court room was cleared of all who did not have an immediate interest in the case. While she told of her love, Miss St. Pierre gazed steadily at Hutton. He stared back fixedly, occasionally swallowing hard.

He sang love songs to her, the nurse testified, swore he could not live without her, called her tender names, promised to "build a lovely little nest," and repeatedly asked her to marry him. She accepted, she continued, and a wedding date was tentatively fixed for March, 1931. The suit was not filed, however, until after Hutton's marriage to Mrs. McPherson.

Meanwhile, unaware that the trial had even begun, Mrs. Hutton was confined to a sanitarium. She is suffering from a nervous breakdown and a strange tropical illness contracted on her recent tour of Central America with her husband. Reports were allowed to talk to Mrs. Hutton yesterday through the screen of her secluded room on the condition they would not discuss the trial. The evangelist has been told the trial was postponed so she would be free from any excitement the testimony might cause. She had announced she would stand by her husband in his legal troubles.

"I try so hard to get well," the evangelist said. "I am so tired and it is hard to go on. I want to see my son's baby when it comes."

Oshkosh Plane Prepared for Atlantic Hop

Fliers to Take Off for New York and Then to Harbor Grace by July 1

Oshkosh — Except for the installation of a new motor, the flame red monoplane "Oshkosh B-7" is ready at the Oshkosh airport, for the proposed Atlantic flight to Oslo, Norway.

Clyde Lee, 24-year-old Oshkosh aviator, and his companion, Julius "Speed" Robertson, 18, of Negawee, Mich., hope to be winging their way eastward, first to New York and then to Harbor Grace by July 1.

Lee has personally supervised the Simpson 6-place monoplane. A 150 gallon fuel tank has been installed in the fuselage, and each wing contains a 50-gallon container. About 250 gallons of gas will be carried in 5-gallon containers.

The Oshkosh birdman, in his flight, will be carrying out an unfulfilled ambition once held by Roy Larsen, pioneer aviator in the state, who crashed in an accident in 1929. Larsen, who taught Lee to pilot, a ship, intended a cross-ocean flight, and made his preliminary plans

McAdoo is Candidate in California for Senator

Los Angeles — (AP) — William Gibbs McAdoo, who has announced he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator from California, said Tuesday he would reveal his plan to return from the party's national convention in Chicago.

The secretary of the treasury in the Woodrow Wilson administration leaves today for Chicago to attend a meeting Thursday of the platform committee of the Democratic National convention. He will travel in his private airplane.

McAdoo, through sponsors, formally announced his candidacy yesterday.

Two years before Lindbergh hopped off Lee had hoped to go with Larsen as navigator.

Lee is determined to make the flight, regardless of whether a financial reward will await him on the other side of the ocean. There was a prize of $10,000 posted by a Norwegian newspaper at one time, but that offer has been apparently withdrawn. There is the possibility of financial reward in a purse which will be raised in Norway, following completion of a successful flight to that country.

Clyde Lee is a member of the Oshkosh Junior Chamber of Commerce. For his flight, he will wear the insignia of the organization on his flying togs. It will be the first time the junior chamber of commerce has been identified with any trans-Atlantic project.

Stocks Bearish When Dividends Are Cut, Omitted

Unfavorable Interpretation Is Put on Every Development

New York — In a bear market whenever there is any possibility of it, an unfavorable interpretation is put on every development, business or financial, and on every market movement. If a stock goes down it is because the dividend is in danger either of being reduced or of being omitted altogether.

When the directors do meet and declare the regular rate, it is said that this is only temporary, that next time the disbursement will be reduced and again the stock goes down. Or sometimes it is asserted that dividends really make no difference at all; it is earnings that count and maintenance of a regular rate ought to mean nothing to the market for the stock. Everyone knows that net income is on the decline, that the dividend is being covered by a margin that continuously decreases and that the directors ought to know better than to continue to pay out of surplus.

When the income statement comes out and shows that all this is false it is readily explained that the turn will come next quarter for business being what it is no corporation can continue to make profits. If a stock sells for less than its equity in net current assets, sometimes for less than its equity in cash and cash items, that means nothing in bear market psychology for how can a company continue to operate without profit and not eat into these equities? As for the property account that is of no importance as long as operations are conducted at a loss. The future will bring bankruptcy anyway. So prices keep on falling.

Now all this is not only plausible but very often perfectly true. There comes a time, however, when cause and effect are hopelessly confused. Then it is declared not that the stock is going down because the dividend is in danger, but that the dividend is in danger because the stock is going down. This sounds insane and it is. Market followers take it as an affront for anyone to suggest that a market decline can have any other reason than something untoward in the affairs of the corporation concerned.

When this stage is reached the turn is at hand. All stock market history shows that professional and amateur traders alike are invariably the most bearish at the bottom and the most bullish at the top.

Cities Should Make Plans for Future—Stuart

Plan Serves as Yardstick For Officials to Follow, He Tells League

Menasha — "Public opinion has been educated through our recent experiences to want to plan for the future, and it appreciates what a plan can do," Kimberly Stuart, secretary of the Neenah planning commission, told representatives of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities at a general convention session in St. Mary auditorium Wednesday morning.

Talking on "What a City Plan Can Do for the Small Community," Stuart said that a city plan provides a yard stick for the guidance of city officials. It is a definite plan around which the community develops for years to come. It will eliminate undue depreciation in property values through lack of zoning control, will eliminate over congestion of population or traffic and will render many other important services to the community, he pointed out.

Must Stop Congestion

To stop congestion, Stuart maintained, is the most important function of a city plan. Cities should stop traffic congestion by planning proper through arteries and adequate street widths; stop congestion in industrial sections which lead to poor working conditions that create new traffic problems and increase fire hazards; stop congestion in service lines by planning adequate sewers, water and gas mains and stop congestion in residential zones by preventing over building.

The basis for the plan at Neenah, he explained, is a number of surveys, covering traffic density, population, parks and playgrounds, new subdivision development for estimated increase in population, school systems, industries and probable directional growth; and sewer and water needs. A zoning map of the city also is utilized.

Seeing that the easiness of residential congestion and the cost of correcting problems caused by improper or no city planning, he suggested that new subdivisions should only be accepted when their lot area is not less than a minimum of 50 feet frontage by 120 feet depth. With modern transportation, the zone of residential area "has immensely widened."

Turning To Country

People all over the country are tired of congestion and the expense of city life and are demanding small houses which can be erected for a reasonable sum on lots of sufficient area to give them breathing space and some chance for lawn or garden. If this tendency continues, he stated, we will see some drastic reductions in the population of some of our large cities and a corresponding increase in rural or semi-rural communities.

Summing up his talks Stuart said city planning is important for the small community, and especially so right now, because the trend of population from the country to the big city is declining; because the big city dweller is definitely moving away from congestion and high living costs; the automobile is widening out the possible residential area; industry is seeking out the rural and semi-rural communities; well planned community with efficient low cost administration will draw more population to itself than will the inefficiently operated high tax rate neighbor; and because public opinion has been educated to want a plan for the future.

"There is a challenge today to every community as to whether we will be able to meet our problems intelligently and administer our affairs efficiently and economically."

Conduct Tryouts for Annual Outdoor Play

Menasha—First tryouts for the cast of "The Devil in the Cheese," the summer production of the Winnebago players of Neenah and Menasha, were conducted at the Neenah public library Tuesday evening. Similar tryouts at 7:30 Wednesday and Thursday evenings are planned.

The play, a comedy by Don Cushing, will be presented in Don Cushing's new playhouse, 23 and 25, Miss Ruth Dieckhoff, who will direct the production, also heads a committee in charge of tryouts.

Officials Make Plans For Softball Contest

Menasha — Plans are nearing completion for the softball game between Menasha city officials and employees and Winnebago-co officers from Oshkosh, to be played on the city park diamond here June 29.

Although definite positions have not been assigned to all the players, it is expected that C. A. Heckrodt, city treasurer; H. J. Berro, water and light department cashier; E. J. Fahrback, E. Sonnenberg, and R. E. Fahrback, supervisors; Peter Kessel, superintendent of streets; Michael Grode, third ward alderman; Arthur Gutman, fireman; and Beach, Reimer, Finch, and Lipske of the water and light department, will see action. Henry Knoelke, fourth ward alderman, has been selected as head umpire.

Falcon Baseball Team To Play Wrightstown

Menasha—The Menasha Falcons, credited with two wins and four losses in Little Fox League competition, will meet the Wrightstown aggregation on the city park diamond here Sunday afternoon. Manager "Tony" Konekzie is expected to start on the mound for Menasha with Slumski and Weisberger on deck for relief hurling and Smazinski working behind the plate.

Driver Escapes as Car Plunges Into Canal Near Bridge

Menasha—Louis Miller, 230 Second-st., Neenah, narrowly escaped injury about 6:30 Tuesday evening when he drove his automobile over an embankment into the canal near the Tracyco bridge.

Miller planned to stop near the end of Tracyco-st. according to reports, but apparently pressed the accelerator rather than the brake. The car, which partially submerged in the canal, was not damaged, and the driver escaped injury.

500 Delegates at State Gathering Of Cities League

Must Continue to Improve Government, G. W. Mead Declares

Menasha—Registration of nearly 500 delegates, including city managers, mayors, and other city officials from communities throughout the state opened regular activities of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities convention at St. Mary auditorium Wednesday morning.

Pre-convention activities included a meeting of the league resolutions committee at Hotel Menasha Tuesday afternoon and evening and a dinner meeting of league officials, Menasha aldermen and officials and a number of delegates was held at the hotel Tuesday evening. General discussion of the progress and plans of the municipalities league followed the dinner.

Following registration of delegates Wednesday morning, the first general convention session opened at St. Mary auditorium at 10 o'clock, with George W. Mead of Wisconsin Rapids, league president, presiding. Mayor N. G. Remond gave the address of welcome and Mayor J. H. Wallis of Rice Lake responded on behalf of the league.

Urges Improvement

G. W. Mead, in his president's address, stressed the need of continued improvement in municipal government and cautioned cities against drastic reductions in expenditures before investigation of efficiency needs is made. City officials and employees, he stated, should be selected on the basis of qualification rather than on politics or friendship. Officers should be properly trained, should report their activities in office to the citizens and should cooperate in this respect with newspapers.

Government of a city needs more diversified skill than any other activity in the community, he stated. Relative to efficient government he stressed the need of an accurate budget, regular audits, qualified ordinance and expert officials. In closing he expressed his confidence in the development of the league's service.

Myer J. V. Diener of Green Bay chairman of the league's telephone committee, reported on the work of the committee and of the public service commission in investigation of Wisconsin Telephone company revenue in cities throughout the state. His talk was preceded by the annual report of Frederick N. Macfarland, executive secretary, and the reception of resolutions.

Meet In Afternoon

Kimberly Stuart's address completed the morning program, but regular sessions were to be resumed at the auditorium at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and were to be featured by talks by City Manager William O'Brien of Kenosha; Adolph Kanneberg, chairman state committee on water pollution; David E. Lillienal, public service commissioner; and Frank P. Lawton, supervisor of state insurance fund.

The park and recreation section was to meet at the Memorial building at 2 o'clock and the city clerks and treasurers section at the public library.

A four of Menasha and Neenah was to start at St. Mary auditorium at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and continue past places of interest in both cities.

General sessions will continue at St. Mary auditorium Wednesday evening and Thursday morning and a number of sectional meetings will be held Thursday afternoon. A band concert Wednesday evening and a dancing party Thursday evening is planned for the entertainment of delegates.

Whiting Softballers To Play Oshkosh Team

Menasha—The Whiting softball squad, Menasha's entry in Fox River Valley softball league competition, will meet the strong Oshkosh aggregation on the Neenah greens diamond Sunday morning. Faulk is expected to pitch for Oshkosh with Klein on the mound for the Menasha team.

Board of Education To Act on Coal Bids

Menasha—Action on bids for the provision of about 300 tons of coal for use by public schools in Menasha will be taken at a special meeting of the board of education at the high school at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. Dr. F. M. Corry, chairman, will preside.

GILBERT PAPERS LOSE

Menasha—The Menasha Wooden Ware softball squad swamped the Gilbert Papers, 16 to 6, in an industrial league contest on the city park diamond Tuesday evening. Regular competition will continue Wednesday in a clash between the Banta and Whiting teams and Thursday between the Grade aggregation and the league leading Cartons.

League to Vote on Prosperity Loan To Battle Slump

Resolution Favors Five Billion Dollar Aid From Corporation

Menasha—Favorable action on a plan for a five billion dollar prosperity loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to provide funds for national projects in a war against unemployment, and recommended by Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, was sought by the resolutions committee of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities in its report to the convention at St. Mary auditorium Wednesday morning. The convention will vote on the resolutions Thursday morning.

The suggestion provides that congress literally declare war against unemployment and depression; and to this end a work army be mobilized as armies were mobilized in 1917-18 for work on national projects throughout the United States.

Mayor Hoan recommends that the league go on record as favorable to the enactment of legislation by which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to advance such credits to American municipalities as may be necessary to provide for the conservation of the American people during the present industrial depression and as may be necessary for the funding of maturing obligations. He further recommended that copies of the resolutions be forwarded to the president of the United States, to Congress, and to the press.

Seek Special Committee

Other resolutions submitted by the committee included a plan for appointment of a league committee authorized to make cooperative purchases of fire hoses for league members, submitted by Ed Kiusmeyer of Manitowoc.

A resolution submitted to the committee by Peter Walraven, city manager at Stevens Point, provides that the league take steps to have proper bills presented to the Wisconsin legislature to relieve cities of the "unjust burden" imposed by the present provisions of chapter 63 of the statutes and to equalize the burdens and benefits in proportion to the share of expenses born by the respective municipalities. Chapter 63, it was maintained in the resolution, should be changed to prevent the diverting of funds raised by cities through taxation to improvement of highways in towns and villages without any aid or benefit therefrom coming back to the cities.

Another resolution, presented provides for the drafting of bills that will offset the present period of readjustment whereby persons are constantly having their salaries cut and at the same time are expected to meet their liabilities in payments. Principal and interest on homes at the old rate when condition were at their best, and still paying for this although property values have come down some 30 per cent—legislation that will take the burden from the property owners to other channels.

Property Owners' Aid

The resolution provided further that the present statute 49.01, Chapter 197, laws of 1931, be analyzed for a possible amendment that would lend aid to property owners, before they are compelled to practically lose their homes before receiving any aid.

Fort Atkinson's city manager, A. J. Koenig, presented a resolution on the committee providing that "The president of the league of Wisconsin municipalities be hereby authorized and directed to appoint a special committee, of a suitable number, to make a careful and thorough study of the existing election laws of Wisconsin and to file a report of the results of such study, embodying therein such recommendations relative to the proposed revision of the statutes as they may deem to be in the interests of the municipalities of the state."

Two resolutions, submitted by M. F. White, city attorney at River Falls, provide for the repeal of legislation interfering with local control of municipal utilities.

Seek Amendments

The first provided that "it is the best judgment of the municipal league that any and all parts of Chapter 198, Wis. Statutes, that in any manner interfere with the local control and management of said utilities by the municipality interested be repealed; and that its legislative and power committees be and hereby are instructed to exert its best endeavors by amendments to such statute introduced in the 1933 sessions of the legislature to accomplish such purpose."

The second provided that the Legislative committee be instructed to introduce into the 1933 session of the legislature, a bill repealing subsection (10) of Section 66.06, Wis. Statutes; and use its best endeavors for the passage of such bill.

C. P. Hofkes, village clerk at Boyd also drafted two resolutions one providing that the statutes in regard to the municipal water department for villages consisting of three, five, or seven members not being members of the village board be abolished; and the other that the village supervisor to the county board should also be a member of the village board as president or trustee.

Neenah Policeman Suspended Pending Probe of Charges

Discharge of Tear Gas Cartridge Results in Commission Action

Neenah—Charles Maynor, desk sergeant and patrolman, was suspended from the police force Tuesday afternoon by the police and fire commission following investigation of the discharge of a tear gas cartridge by Maynor. Maynor was charged the cartridge while he was attempting to arrest Henry Kaestner last Friday night. Kaestner is in a serious condition at Theda Clark hospital as a result of burns upon his face and body.

The commission meeting was attended by E. M. Hatton, Robert Jamison, H. F. Anspach and August Rappager, Leo Schubart being out of the city. Charges of violation of sections 17, 18 and 21 of rule 70 governing rules and regulations of police officers were made. These charges consisted of cowardice, inefficiency and brutality in discharging of his duties. A hearing will be held 10 days after the charges are filed with the defendant, which probably will be today. During the period of time of serving the papers on Maynor and the date of the hearing, the case will be investigated further and the condition of Kaestner noted.

Maynor was at a N. Commercial-st. hamburger stand for a lunch last Friday night. When Kaestner became noisy, the officer attempted to arrest him. It is alleged Kaestner resisted the officer, who discharged the tear gas cartridge at him at close range. Kaestner was taken to the police station, where he spent the night, and appeared in court the next morning. Pleading not guilty, he was to have appeared again in the afternoon for a hearing, but his condition became worse and he was taken to the hospital. Mayor George Sande was summoned to the hospital by Kaestner, who told his story. The mayor immediately ordered an investigation. John Neubauer has been placed on the police force during the suspension period.

Unwise Mother Love Can Ruin Life of Child

Possessive Mother is Child's Worst Enemy.

Dorothy Dix Says

BY DOROTHY DIX

Among my correspondents is a poor little bewildered 16-year-old girl, who is having a lot of trouble with her mother and doesn't know what to do about it.

"I have set my heart on graduating this term," she writes, "but I am afraid I won't be able to do so because my mother interferes so much with my studies. She wants me to give all of my time to school to her and when she sees me with a book in my hand she begins to cry and says that I think more of my old Latin and mathematics than I do of her and that if I loved her I would want to take to her instead of studying."

"I shut my door she accuses me of trying to separate myself from her and she goes around for days and days looking as if her heart would break and if I don't let her tuck me in bed as if I were a baby she scolds and says that she had better die now that her own child doesn't care anything more for her."

"Now I do love my mother dearly and try in every way I can to please her but I can't just sit in her lap the balance of my life can I? And that is just about what she wants me to do."

"And mother is always telling me how much I owe to her and how grateful I should be for all she has done for me and how she took care of me when I was a baby and nursed me when I was sick and how many sacrifices she has made for me and how I never repay her for all she has sacrificed, but lands sakes, Miss Dix, I didn't ask to be born, and after she brought me into the world it looks to me as if she owed me something."

"Now I have told my mother a million times how grateful I am to her and how much I appreciate her and love her but that doesn't satisfy her. She still weeps and claims I don't care whether she is alive or dead and I don't know how I can convince her of my affection and make her happy. What must I do?"

Keep on telling her what she wants to hear. That is the only way you can have any peace with her. All of her tears and reproaches and martyr poses are just so many cowardly weapons with which she is trying to force protection in devotion from you. But as soon as you are grown and able to stand on your own feet flee from her as you would from a deadly enemy, for she is determined to rob you of everything in life that is worth having.

A good mother is the greatest blessing that any child can have. A possessive mother is the greatest misfortune that can befall it. For the possessive mother does not scruple to enslave her ambitions and distort their lives and to break their hearts and wreck their happiness.

This sounds like a hard indictment of motherhood and, thank God, it is not true of most mothers. But every one of us can point you to a dozen gentle, sweet-faced, saintly looking mothers who have committed these crimes against their children, and who, ironically enough, consider themselves good mothers.

We know mothers who, because they want to keep their children dependent on them and always look up to mother, try to force a perpetual babyhood upon their offspring. They do all in their power to keep their children from growing up and becoming self-reliant men and women. They never let them use their own judgment. They never let them have any freedom of thought or action. They want them to go through the world hanging on to mother's hand.

All about us we see the results. Middle-aged men and women who have no decision of character, who are weaklings who have to cling to some stronger person for support. Husbands and wives who are always running back home to mother to tell her their troubles and ask her advice. Why not long ago a woman of 70 told me: upon the death of her aged mother that she had never even bought a pocket handkerchief for herself or made a single move on her own initiative. Mother had always done everything for her.

We know plenty of other mothers who have tied their children so firmly to their apron strings that they could not break away to go where fortune awaited them. John had a fine offer to go into business as a distant city, but mother couldn't bear to be parted from him and she wept and clung to him until he gave up and settled down to a life of drudgery on the farm or in a little town where there was no opportunity for advancement.

Sally had a God-given talent that would have brought her fame and wealth, but to have developed it she would have to leave home and mother, and mother worked upon her sympathies and sense of duty by moaning out that she was old and wouldn't live long and how lonely and forlorn she would be without her, until Sally sacrificed her ambitions and the career she might have had and became a slave to mother, who lived on for the

MORE FORMALITY IN SPORTS COSTUMES WORN BY FOLKS IN SOCIETY

BY BETSY SCHUIJER

New York — There is a note of formality in the sports clothes which have been appearing at the horse races, dog shows and other sports events this year. They are as chic and youthful as ever, but they are careful instead of careless about it. The cut of a sleeve or the tying of a bow has a lot to do with putting a costume across socially.

Society wore its smartest sports clothes at the sixth annual dog show of the Morris and Essex Kennel Club at Giralda Farm, in Madison, N. J. If blue ribbons had been pinned on costumes, too, Mrs. Charles B. Harding would have taken one with her two-piece light-weight woolen suit, whose brief jacket is fastened with a large button at a place several inches above the normal waistline. The sleeves are full and short, and the low V-neck lets an audaciously polka-dotted scarf tie in a loose knot which drops one end under the jacket. There is a belt in two shades to define a waistline that is slightly low.

Fortescues at the Races

Mrs. Granville Fortescue and her daughter, Miss Helene Fortescue, are striking a rather dignified note in their summer sports clothes, also. Mrs. Fortescue, who was defendant in the sensational Honolulu murder trial, was at Belmont in a dark silk dress whose V-neck was adorned with a diagonally striped scarf. Miss Fortescue broke into a print, relieved by a huge white collar composed mostly of lapels, and big white cuffs.

The touch of white is one of the most definite notes of the new feminine mode that has taken possession of summer fashions. A touch of white at the throat and wrists will make any unadorned tailored dress into something more interesting and demure than it was before.

Making a Bow to Chic

Mrs. Raymond Allen ties a particularly stunning bow low on her throat when she wears a dark tailored suit. The bow follows a plaid motif combined with sections of solid color and plain white. Mrs. David C. Moss makes a point of more interesting by using crisp white collar and cuffs for adornment. Miss Catherine Arnold has been appearing in a rough material sports dress with matching jacket that has long lapels which follow a design with a foliage pattern.

Wearing stripes, too, is quite the thing. Wide stripes, or narrow ones that resemble old-fashioned sticks of candy, are adding interest to dresses. Mrs. J. Helm, of Rahway, N. J., has a thin striped frock whose stripes go up and down, back and forth, or take a diagonal pattern, according to where they are placed. A touch of white at the neck adds dash. Short sleeves, tied with narrow black ribbon, set off the numerous play of lines.

William Duryea makes use of the same striped design in a dress which she wears under a sweater which is belted in white.

Blooming in the Mode

Summer frocks are blossoming with old-fashioned nosegays, too. Now and then a flower, upon examination, turns into a group of cherries or a gay apple. This happens in the case of Mrs. F. Charles Folwell, owner of The Park, N. Y. Clusters of cherries have their way all over her frock with its full, long sleeves. She, too, uses white at the neck.

Most of the sports dresses aim at restricted gaiety. They are bright and interesting, but they don't let their sports spirit get out of bounds for a second.

Anyone Can Wear Blue if She Uses Proper Make-Up

BY ALICIA HART

Frenchwomen have built themselves a gorgeous reputation for beauty by knowing what make-up to wear with black.

This year every little 100 per cent American has to learn how to make-up for the blues that abound. Some few blondes are equipped by Nature. Don't let them give you an inferiority complex. Art can make up for what Nature left down on.

Spring blues tend to take color out of your face. Therefore you must put more on than you do for pinks, or reds, or even whites. Blue shows up your shadows, wrinkles, and swallow complexion. Try lingerie touches or dead white, beige, off-whites and flattering pinks. Also, try on a brimmed hat, instead of a cloche. Take it if it looks better.

A good complexion base softens your skin's look, does something to cover up wrinkles and makes your complexion stick. Use one. White powders show up blemishes when an ochre tone softens them. Therefore use a much deeper toned powder with your blue clothes than you are using elsewhere. Not too deep, you understand.

Deep purple red rouge and pink are much kinder to you, when you are wearing blues, than bright, hard, light red ones. Anybody, with the right make-up, can wear blue. Don't get the blues by thinking you can't. Just get out the paint box and use taste.

next thirty or forty years, until it is too late for her to do anything.

And look at the hosts of mothers who wailing promises from their children never to marry as long as they live! Look at the desiccated old maids and old bachelors we all know dancing attendance on selfish old women who tyrannize over them and rule them with a rod of iron.

Mother has had her own life. She has had love and romance and marriage and children who at least brought her enough pleasure for her to want to keep them to herself, but she ruthlessly denies all of these to her sons and daughters and

Sterilization is Answer To Canned Food Problem

BY SISTER MARY

NEA Service Writer

BRIDE's first experience in canning is one of her thrilling housekeeping adventures. Although modern methods have come to the rescue regarding measurements and time for cooking, the first hours spent in a spic and span kitchen "putting up" fruits and jellies are not without their moments of anxiety.

Successful canning depends on the principle of sterilization. Food which has been made sterile must be kept so and the efficiency of these processes is the answer to the canning problem.

In addition to the necessity of a temperature which will kill germs and complete sealing to keep out germ-laden air, several other factors must be considered in the work of canning.

Canning does not in any way improve the quality of the product canned. Fruits and vegetable which were old and tasteless before canning will be just that way after sterilization.

Acid May Be Added

Vegetables which contain no acid are difficult to can in the home kitchen unless a steam pressure cooker is used. The sterilization or processing period must be carried on for several hours. However, it has been found that the addition of a little acid will overcome this difficulty without affecting the flavors of the canned product.

From one to two teaspoons lemon juice added to each pint of asparagus, string beans, peas, green and corn reduces the time of processing and insures against spoilage. Corn requires two teaspoons lemon juice. This gives a slightly acid flavor when the jar is opened for serving, but one-half teaspoon soda added with the seasoning when the vegetable is reheated neutralizes the acid most satisfactorily.

A short pre-cooking period before packing in cans is a decided advantage. In this way the center of the filled jar reaches the processing from 30 to 40 minutes sooner than when vegetables are packed cold.

Fruits and vegetables canned in glass should be stored in a dark place. Light will cause the foods to lose their color, which of course detracts from their appearance when served. The temperature at which canned vegetables are stored is also important since it has a pronounced effect on the keeping qualities. Store them in as cool a place as possible, preferably between 45 and 60 degrees F.

Many farmers in the Philippines are extracting oil from coconuts for household illumination and for soap-making.

PRACTICAL ALL-AROUND DRESS

A gay and smart affair is this model, so charming for town or resort. It is cool, easy to wear and perfectly simple to make. Carry it out as the original in a sheer silk in blue and white with plain sheer blue crepe, and you'll adore it for its practicality.

Crinkle crepe silk in orange-red topped by plain white crinkle crepe, with red button trim and red leather belt, is truly fascinating. Style No. 2903 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 2 yards of 39-inch contrasting.

Determine Attitude Of Your Child

BY ANGELS PATRI

We are often grieved at the thought of the mistakes we make in dealing with children. We can take comfort from the thought that so long as our attitude toward the child is right we can do him little harm. It is only when our attitudes are wrong, when they are selfish and unreasonable and shortsighted that we do mischief.

In working out any problem with the children the first step ought to be toward ourselves. More after than we imagine the difficulty in dealing with children arises out of trouble within ourselves. First we must sweep clean our mental houses. We must from the habit of interviewing ourselves thoroughly.

What is it we want for our children? Why do we want it? If we succeed in getting it will the children be happier and more efficient in daily living? How much of what we want for the children is for ourselves? Are we looking at the child against his own background or against our own?

A mother was struggling with her adolescent son who was in his freshman year in college. "He hasn't the slightest interest in his work. His instructors are agreed that he has a fine mind but he will not apply it to his work. I want him to be an honor man. I want him to be graduated with honor from the college because his father was an honor man there. Why can't he see it?"

The boy was not a doctor, he was a writer. While his body was held fast in medical school his mind was off in the literature classes. He did his best to comply but he couldn't. When at last the dean persuaded his mother to allow him to change his course she did so with tears and lamentation. She did not know that she was sending the boy to college for herself but she was sensible enough to sacrifice her ambitions to save the boy. Some of us have not that good sense. It is when our motives are selfish that they make trouble for us and the children.

This holds good throughout the years of training, in big and in little things. When we order a child to stop what he is doing simply because it makes us uncomfortable, we are selfish. We ought to ask if what he is doing is not making us what is, we must stand for it. If it will hurt him, we stop him at any cost.

The main thing is the attitude one holds toward the child. If he is certain of affection, if he knows that whatever he does is going to be viewed with the eyes of love and understanding, he will forgive any mistake we make. But if he fears by experience that we are corrupt, selfish, domineering, he will want us and that from him. Teaching and holding our mistakes against us in the day of reckoning.

So long as we set our attitudes right, so long as we can shake off the reflection of ourselves and see the child's good clearly, we are safe, and the children, safest of all.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Your Birthday

"CANCEER"

If June 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:35 p. m.

Life will move along pleasanter lines on June 23rd, and the Stars will be in a more helpful mood. Although hands will not possess a more magical touch, or brain be so quick with a keener wit, most efforts will bear bountiful fruits. A forthcoming event of a happy nature may first be suspected on this date.

Children born on this June 23rd will take kindly to flattery and petting, and could be easily spoiled. They will have capricious tempers, and should be trained to discipline them. Their imaginations will be flighty, and they will find much amusement building card-houses. There is little fixity in their nature.

Born on June 23rd, you are a self-sacrificing individual and it would seem that you find pleasure in being a martyr. You force your kindness, your favors, your gifts, and your services on other people. You spring to help at the first call for relief, and you are certainly a good salvager. You are not so busy, however, giving out to the world, that you do not have time to worry about what you are getting back in return. You do not do things solely for selfishness or for humanity. You like to make yourself important to those around you, and to feel that you are indispensable to your family or business, as the case may be. You always feel hurt and abused when one hundred per cent gratitude is not forthcoming, which it seldom is.

You make acquaintances quickly, and possibly rush into premature intimacies which you later regret. Confidences are given you without solicitation, and you enjoy listening to them. You mean to be careful and your tongue, although it is difficult for you to resist handing out choice bits of news and gossip. There is much sentimentality about you, and you will seek a romantic marriage. If you escape the "in love with love" period of life, you may find your real mate.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

SUE DECIDES TO KEEP HER JOB

THE man hesitated a moment before answering Ruth's question. She had asked who had brought Sally's engagement ring to him.

"A girl, I think," he said then. "Now I remember! A girl with blue eyes and reddish hair. A pretty girl. She left some rubies, too, just to be pawned."

"Then she did leave the rubies?" Ruth asked.

"Do you know her?" the pawnbroker asked.

"Yes," she nodded. "She's my sister. Thank you for telling me all of these things."

Outside, Ruth wondered what Joe Raynor must be thinking since the ring had not come back. Maybe he had not noticed it. Sally, however, must be desperately pressed for money to pull such a trick. She hailed a cab, went to Arnold Page's office and delivered the amount that Sally owed him. Sue was typing at a desk in the corner of the room. The chair was massive. So was the desk. She glanced up as Ruth entered, smiled, but went on typing until Ruth's errand was finished. The telephone rang. Page reached for it. Evidently the office had been equipped with a phone, Ruth decided. There hadn't been time for the installation of one.

"Ruth, I'm scared for fear Jack will find out that I'm here. He doesn't know I'm working. And I'm going to stop as soon as I can. Only after I let Mr. Page take this office, because his sister made it embarrassing to work at home, I can't walk out on him!"

"Why don't you tell Jack?" Ruth asked in an equally low voice.

"But I promised him—or I mean he thought I promised him—and it's the same thing—that I wouldn't get a job. He can't know! He wouldn't understand."

She paused, fumbling with the keyboard, releasing the key shift, until she noticed a slight frown on Arnold Page's face. Evidently she was disturbing him. She flushed a little and folded her hands in her lap.

"Oh, Ruth, I don't want to stay at all! Where can I tell Jack I am when he comes home or calls me or doesn't find me?" Her voice was almost a sob.

"Tell him the truth, Sue. It's better than letting all sorts of complications come up."

Down under all the lesser problems Ruth's own excitement was surging. Everybody else's troubles — Sue's, Ruth's, Arnold Page's, Nancy's — were just passing features. Shadowy lights. Nothing was real but that she was going to meet Dale Courtney in a few minutes. See him smile! Hear him talk. Sit across the table and make plans with him. She glanced at her watch. Then her eyes came back to Sue's face. She noticed that the dark blue eyes were ringed with heavy purple lines. The face was too white.

"Sue, you have to stop. Mr. Page will understand! Tell him now, while I'm here. It's always easier to do something unpleasant when somebody else is around. Everyone has to be more polite. Hurry up!"

But Sue sat still. Then she shook her head.

"I can't. Don't you see? It would be breaking a trust, in a way. I'll have to wait until he finds someone else. It won't be hard to do but he seems particular. And besides, we need the money so dreadfully. We haven't the insurance money to help us with the car. I can pay some of our debts for furniture and things and Jack won't know. He'll think I managed out of my allowance. I have to stick it out! You see, the bills are staggering. And it's my fault. Jack wouldn't have left his father's firm if it hadn't been for me. I have to stay!"

But after Page had replaced the telephone, and Ruth had gone to meet Dale Courtney, Sue sat staring out of the window into the street. Suddenly she leaned forward, eyes widening.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

Men who are completely selfish are, fortunately, rare in this world. But when one does appear it soon becomes evident, not only that he is going to bring unhappiness to every life that he touches, but that he is going to achieve a good deal of unhappiness for himself, too.

This solemn reverie follows a reading of Louis Bromfield's new novel, "A Modern Hero."

Pierre Radier, the central figure of this book, is a wholly selfish man. The son of an irregular union between a lady circus performer and a European financier, he grows up in a traveling circus and nourishes a burning desire to get out of this environment and achieve great goals of worldly success. He vows, also, that he will always be free. No emotional entanglement are ever going to hamper his movements.

So he sets out to realize his ambitions. First he discards his mother. Then Leah, the woman who advances the money with which he makes his start in life, is ruthlessly shelved. Then Muller, the mechanic who enables him to become a rich manufacturer, is used and tossed aside.

He marries Hazel, the rich financier's daughter, uses her as another stepping stone, and tramples her under foot. But at the

Don't Double Unless You Can Help Your Partner

BY ELY CULBERTSON

I have frequently stated that the most eloquent of all declarations is the pass. As regulation bids paint the picture of the great majority of hands, Overalls tell the story of others. Forcing bids picture the holdings which are strong enough to guarantee game if partner holds even distributional values. Preemptive bids paint a picture of unusual distribution, and passes tell the story of hands upon which the holder at the moment can suggest no further action. Some passes are made because the hands are weak. Other passes are strategic and are based on the hope, generally founded on something that has already transpired, that the opponents will overbid.

Today's hand, sent to me by Dr. E. Reed Whittemore of New Haven, Conn., is the story of a pass, after a Takeout Double and a Redouble by the partner of the Opening bidder, that was converted into a bonus greater than would have been made by the bidding and making of a Grand Slam. Surely, as Dr. Whittemore suggested, the hand is a possible candidate for the distinction of being the world's worst bid on the part of the defending players.

1-A bad Double. The hand, it is true, contains 3 honor-tricks, but the distribution is not such as to warrant this bid. An Overall of two clubs, thereby erecting a possible bidding defense against North and South's game, if not Slam, declaration, would be much sounder.

2—East should bid A bid of two diamonds at this time might have saved at least part of the penalty in store for the East and West partnership.

3—Utterly inexcusable. West explained it later by saying that in a temporary lapse he did not realize that he still could rescue himself. Clubs in Dummy won the first trick. Then the adverse trumps were drawn, the hearts finished.

last he falls; for Homer Flint, his father-in-law, is a little too clever for him, and when Pierre tries to use him as he has used the others, he gets crushed.

And all of these people—except the luckless Hazel—in the end get far more joy out of life than Pierre is ever able to get for himself.

Mr. Bromfield has written an interesting novel, peopled with living characters and touched here and there with colorful melodrama. The book is published by Stokes, and retails for $2.50.

Crisis Faced By Utilities, League Told

Consumers Haven't Income to Pay Old Rates,
Says Lillenthal

Menasha.—(P)—Public utility regulation in the present economic crisis, is facing its severest test and without cooperation from all sides it will fail, David E. Lillenthal, member of the state public service commission said today at the annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

Speaking to the group of local officials assembled here, Mr. Lillenthal discussed the effect of the business depression upon the lives of all classes of people.

With respect to public utilities he declared that the commission has encountered a trying situation because utility rates have declined not at all or very slowly since 1929, while other prices have gone as low and in some cases lower than the pre-war level.

"The farm income has been narrowed way down and the corporate business of the state has been drastically deflated," he said.

For the essential utility services, such as electricity, gas and telephone, excluding railroad transportation, Wisconsin consumers are paying $125,000,000 annually but with an income that has shrunk from one third to one half, he stated.

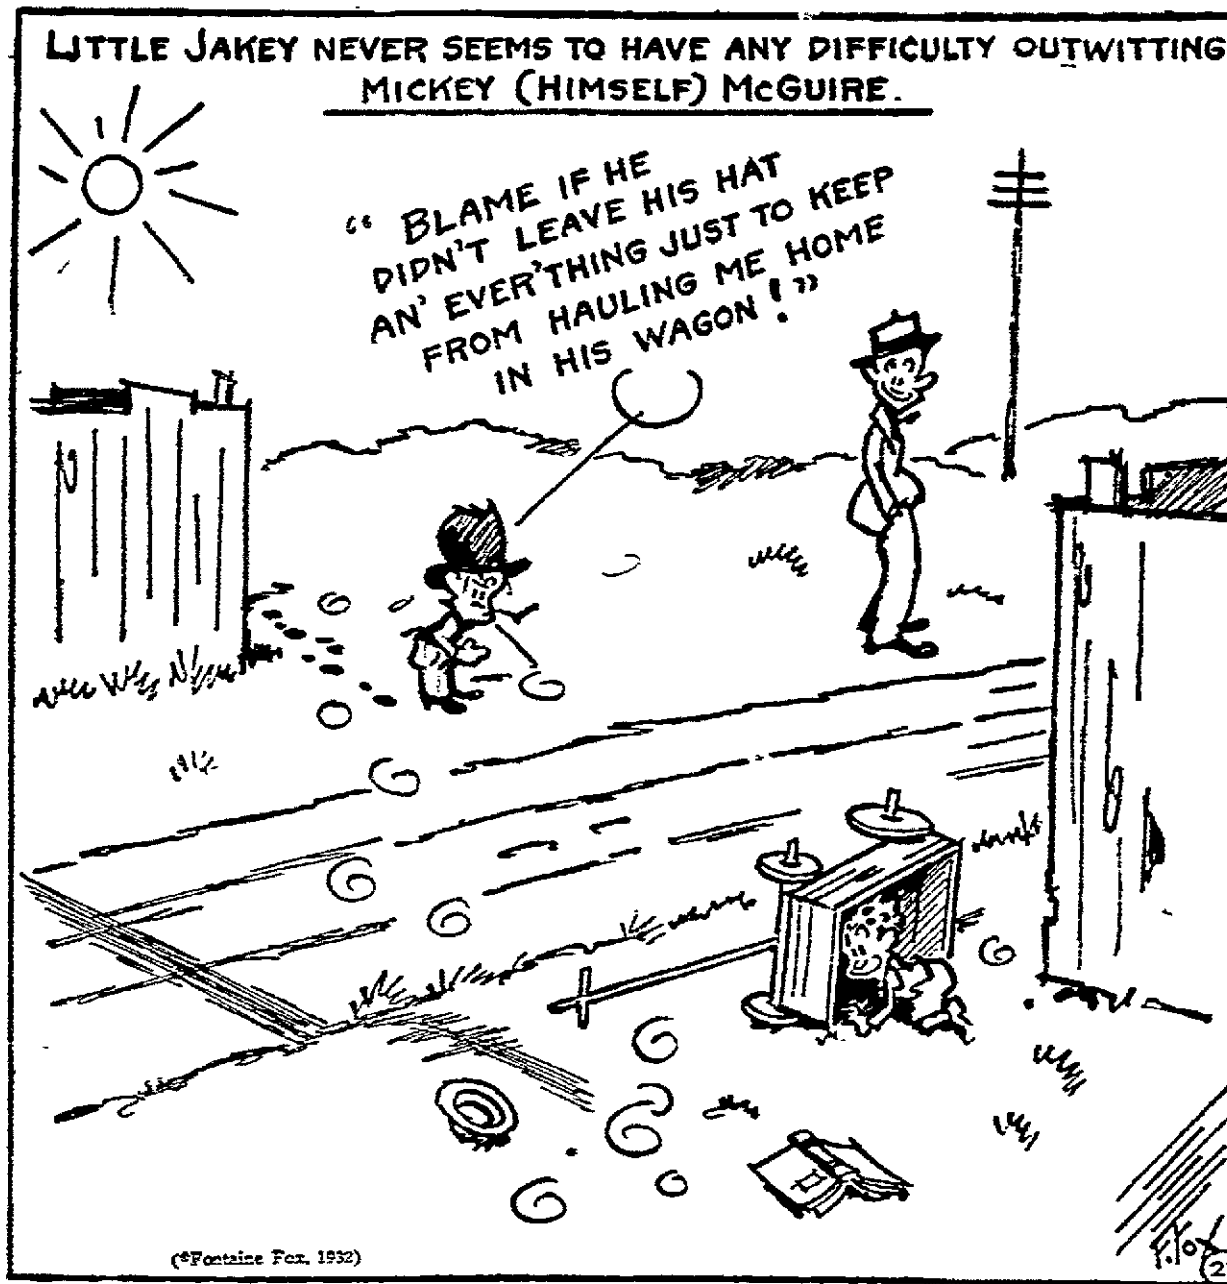

"There you have the problem which faces the consumer, the utilities and your commission," Mr. Lillenthal said.

"The depression also had an important effect upon utilities. This was not true at first. The volume of business of utilities was not affected materially for many months after the crash of 1929. The earnings of some of these companies, partly because of economies which they have been able to put into effect, in 1931 actually increased. In the past few months, however, their volume of business has suffered a substantial decline.

The utility business is unable to cut costs as rapidly or to the same degree as many other lines of business. The chief reason for this is that its investment per dollar of revenue is proportionately so large. Fixed charges by way of interest requirement on capital in even a well-financed utility are high in proportion, and in a poorly financed utility these interest charges may be a large proportion of all costs. This interest is payable because of bonds carrying a given rate of interest which can be lowered only by agreement with the bondholders or voluntary reorganization or receivership."

Pushing His Probe
Pointing out that banks, insurance companies and similar investors hold these bonds he said that the consequences of widespread receiverships and bankruptcy on the bonds would not stop with utilities but would extend far beyond them "and might produce the gravest injury to the entire welfare of the state and country."

Mr. Lillenthal said that the commission is proceeding as rapidly as possible on the investigations it had ordered into the affairs of the larger utilities under the legislative act which permits the assessment of costs against the utilities themselves.

In the investigation of the Wisconsin Telephone company the commission has before it as complete a record of facts concerning economic conditions as has ever been assembled anywhere, he stated.

"But utility regulation," he said, "cannot succeed and our efforts at this hour are doomed unless everyone concerned is willing to work the problem out with the commission. The managers of utility plants, both privately owned and publicly owned, must work with us and not against us. They must give the benefits of their honest judgment."

Frederick N. MacMillan, secretary of the League, which advocated the state-wide inquiry into telephone rates told members that the investigation promises to produce some important results.

Membership in the League, he said in his annual report, increased over 1932 and greater use of the organization as a central information bureau was made.

Frank P. Lawton, supervisor of the state insurance fund, declared that governmental units can lower the cost of fire and tornado insurance on public property by obtaining state insurance and thus reducing taxes.

"State insurance costs only 60 per cent of the amount charged by stock insurance companies," he said. "The state now insures all state buildings and the property of

Badgers Asked to Beware of Heat

"Exercise Common Sense"
State Health Department Advises

Madison.—(P)—Recalling that there was an unprecedented heat toll of 338 lives in Wisconsin last year, the state board of health today urged that residents of the state "exercise the greatest common sense" this summer.

More than 250 of last year's heat victims were more than 50 years old. The board stressed the advice that men and women past middle age exercise extreme caution in avoiding the pitfalls that summer heat waves create.

Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer, said many activities that ordinarily place no undue strain upon the human machine must be taken sparingly during periods of excessive heat. These activities include many forms of recreation as well as labor.

Records of the bureau of vital statistics show that of the 338 deaths, 243 occurred among the males of the state. Direct exposure to the sun during the middle hours of the day produced most of these deaths, the board said.

"No work is so important that the limit of human endurance can be made secondary to it," Dr. Harper said. "Adults should eat sparingly during torrid spells and should limit the diet to light and easily digested foods. Cool tap water or well water is preferable to iced drinks and strenuous sports should be avoided."

Legion Juniors Lose Practice Game, 16-5

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—The junior league baseball team held its second practice game with the city team Tuesday evening and was treated rather roughly by the older players. Lathrop's and Karuh's slants were hit hard, while the junior team had trouble in connecting with Edminister and Westphal. Wilcox, first baseman for the Legion, hit a homer which went through the box office for the longest hit of the evening. The final score was 16-5.

This team on Thursday at 4 o'clock will have a practice session with the Appleton Juniors, while at 6 o'clock the Appleton city team will practice with the locals.

"Vagabond" Poet Addresses Lions

Country Will Profit from Depression, Says Frank Stevenson

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The Lions club Tuesday heard Frank Stevenson, self-styled vagabond poet, who recounted in lyrical form his wanderings in his own and foreign lands.

Mr. Stevenson said that the byways are the places where one meets the real folks of the land. The ribboned highways are for the rich and hold no appeal for the man who wishes truly to get close to the heart of men, the speaker said.

For this reason, he said, he often stopped to talk to a farmer as he hoed in his field, and if something in the man's personality appealed to him he would grab a second hoe and work with him. He might, he said, remain for a meal or a night's lodging, paying his way by working with the farmer and his family.

Speaking on the depression, the poet said that he could already see a great many things of real value arising from present conditions. People are becoming content, he said, to be satisfied with simple things and they are still able to live happily and raise families.

In answer to the query of his religious belief the speaker replied that his religious came from life itself, his contacts with people and the great outdoors where he was enabled to see and meet everything created by God.

Council Studies Laws Governing Soft Drink Rooms

Proprietors Ask That Ruling Prohibiting Window Obstructions be Enforced

New London—Asking that the police department enforce the ruling that windows of soft drink parlors in this city be kept free of signs, screens and other things, which obstruct a clear view of the interior from the street, and urging that no partitions and rear rooms be allowed in any local parlors, a group of proprietors of licensed soft drink parlors presented a resolution to the city council Tuesday night. Mayor Wendlandt stated that the group had appeared before him recently to ask for cooperation on three points, the remaining point being that no licenses be granted by the council beyond the number now in effect, and that the license committee of the council also see that those establishments operating without licenses be dealt with according to the law.

The matter, which came up at the meeting of the council on Tuesday night, will be settled at a meeting next Tuesday night. The mayor said that the group also agreed upon one other point, that all soft drink parlors should close at midnight, and that this ruling should be made to apply to all establishments which are licensed as soft drink parlors, whether housing another business or not.

The matter was pointed out, fail to close at midnight, using for an excuse that some other business maintained under the same roof forces the proprietor to keep open for a longer period.

These matters will all be left to the license committee. There was some discussion as to whether an ordinance exists governing the use of obstructions and the committee was urged to look into this detail and take steps to draft such an ordinance if it was found that none exists.

Regarding the request of Fred Fergot, who at a former meeting had demanded that names of all those receiving poor aid should be published, Mrs. John Freeman, city clerk, stated that she would publish these lists if the council wished. It would, she said, be an added expense to the city and would be humiliating to many families. She continued by saying that the lists kept at the city hall are public and free to anyone asking to see them. Left to the council to decide, the council stated that a list should be sent to those citizens demanding it.

Emergency Crop Acreage is Small

Claim Hay Is Short and Native Pastures Will Soon be Depleted

BY W. F. WINSEY

A large acreage of soybeans and Sudan grass has been planted in towns of Black Creek and Bovina, but because hay is short in many fields and native pastures will soon be done for the season, the acreage of the emergency crops is not over one-tenth as large as it should be.

It does not pay a farmer to have his best fields idle during the growing season, to have no pasture after the month of June, and to be forced to buy hay for use in the fall, winter and spring. Now is the time to start ripping up some of the idle fields and to begin planting either soybeans or Sudan grass to avoid short crops.

Emergency crops may be planted up to July 1. No farmer who sees that he is to be short of hay or pasture can afford to shirk his personal duty between the present time and July 1.

There are three other important sides to these emergency hay and emergency pasture problems. One of them is that no farmer can pay his interest and taxes, buy machinery he needs, and make farm repairs if several of his best fields are idle during the greater part of the growing season. Farmers also should have a two years' supply of hay and grain in his barn as an anchor to the windward in the case of drought or grasshopper invasion. The third is that the pasture season is the most economical dairy season of the year and it should last for eight months of the year.

The plan for eight months pasture includes rye for late fall and early spring, June grass for the latter half of May and all of June, sweet clover for June, July, and August; Sudan grass for July, August, and September, and rye for October, and November. There is some overlapping in this plan that farmers may iron out to meet special conditions.

One of the best fields of soybeans that the writer saw in his travels Saturday was a 20 acre field on the farm of Verne Keenen on the line between the towns of Cicero and Black Creek. Mr. Keenen will probably not be short of hay next fall, winter and spring.

Recent Rains Aid Cabbage Planters

Claim Storm Last Week Flattened Many Fields of Grain

BY W. F. WINSEY

Taking advantage of the perfect soil and weather conditions produced by rains, growers in many parts of Outagamie-co are planting their late fields of cabbage. Despite the fact that the ground was well saturated near the surface at least, many of the planters are watering their plants as they set them. The plants are all large and thrifty and free from maggots and other pests. Judging from a hasty survey, the fields of the county, the cabbage acreage will be about equal to that of last year, although some of the large growers have decreased their acreage this year. Rain and wind last Friday night flattened some of the heavier fields of grain and sweet clover. Thinking that their down grain would not straighten up again some of the farmers suggested cutting the damaged crops for hay.

H. A. Allender, route 1, has started planting three acres of cabbage. His plants in three beds were sturdy and in good condition. E. A. Knoke, route 1, has started planting 55 acres of cabbage. Using a three row planter carrying six or seven men he expects to plant 9 acres daily until the job is completed. His plants are in excellent condition. He has over 400 acres of corn that will be knee high by July 4, in accordance with the rules of successful corn raising in Wisconsin. The corn and soybeans are now about six inches tall. One hundred and twenty-five acres of small grain on his farm compares favorably with the best in Outagamie-co. His hay crop, lacking sweet clover, is not as good as other years.

Barb Allender finished planting 18 acres of cabbage last Saturday. George Lonky is planting 30 acres of cabbage and will finish early this week. He will also plant a few acres of cauliflower. Mike Mack is planting 25 acres of cabbage.

Growers are hustling to finish setting their plants. A number are setting these by hand.

Mr. Allender has 65 acres of a fine growth of small grain this year. Six acres of his barley was knocked down so flat by the recent storm that he is considering cutting of the crop for hay.

1,207 Horses Are Imported in May

Animals Brought to Wisconsin from 11 Different States, Canada

Madison—In spite of decreased purchasing power, Wisconsin imported 1,207 horses during the month of May according to O. J. Thompson, executive secretary of the department of agriculture and markets. The animals came from 11 different states and from Canada.

Of the total, Montana furnished 412 horses, North Dakota 310, South Dakota 174, Illinois 118, and Iowa 111. Other imports were from Minnesota, Colorado, Nebraska, Kentucky, Arizona.

Many shippers expressed themselves as being disappointed with the visible supply of horses in states like South Dakota where the supply formerly seemed to be unlimited. Mr. Thompson points out that while this may spell doom for the horse exportation business in states that were formerly supplying the markets of the country, Wisconsin farmers have taken an increased interest in horse breeding.

"The number of stallions registered in 1932 is but a few more than that in 1931, but many splendid pedigreed horses have been licensed to replace the scrub and grade stallions which were licensed previously to 1928," says Mr. Thompson.

In many instances stallions are being transported from farm to farm by truck and as a result indications are that the number of mares bred this year has increased from 15 to 20 per cent over last year.

According to the statute covering horse breeding, Mr. Thompson explains it is illegal to use or offer for use for public service a stallion unless the stallion is licensed by the Department of Agriculture and Markets. No grade or scrub stallions are licensed unless they were early this week. He will also plant a few acres of cauliflower. Mike Mack is planting 25 acres of cabbage.

Growers are hustling to finish setting their plants. A number are setting these by hand.

Mr. Allender has 65 acres of a fine growth of small grain this year. Six acres of his barley was knocked down so flat by the recent storm that he is considering cutting of the crop for hay.

Jack Sharkey Counter Punches to World's Title

Fans, Experts Argue Merits Of Slow Battle

Feel German as Much Entitled to Decision as Boston Sailor

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The seven long years ended officially today for Jack Sharkey, heavyweight champion of the world at last, after the strangest, most paradoxical career in all modern ring history.

He stood forth as champion, absolved of all past failures, yet in the minds of a great many of the 70,000 faithful who saw him climb the throne there will always linger some question until he again battles Max Schmeling, the German.

For his long and often lack-luster rounds, they battled last night in the great bowl Madison Square Garden has built on Long Island—a Sharkey taming his traitorous temperament as he fought, and the stolid Tueton who owed his crown to one of the sailor's own moments of wildness when he fouled in the Yankee Stadium two years ago.

verdict is split

At the end, through the loud speaker that sent his voice out to the greatest throng that ever saw a prize fight, "Bellerin" Joe Humphries hesitated a bit as he shouted:

"The winner and new champion, Jack Sharkey."

That hesitancy in old Joe's voice seemed to be echoed in the roar that went up from the crowd, in the split verdict of the two judges and Referee "Gus" Smith, the critic, and the referee himself, and even the warriors themselves.

For a moment Sharkey, his shoulders drooping as he stood in his corner, passed before he made his wild dash across the ring to embrace the former king. Schmeling turned and stared as though he could not believe his ears, and the experts promptly launched into arguments.

They'll still be arguing, probably a year or so from today when, in the natural course of events, Sharkey is called upon again to face the foe from overseas.

Followed Tunney's Style

Those who agreed with George Kelly, the judge who voted for Sharkey and Referee Smith, himself a famous old time fighter, who cast the winning vote, could see nothing but that Sharkey, fighting the coolest, calmest duel of his hectic career, had consistently out-boxed the charging Teuton, spattering his face and ribs throughout most of the 15 rounds with jarring left jabs.

It seemed from that side that the Boston sailor-man, although always in retreat, had followed the battle plan of a more illustrious predecessor, Gene Tunney, always on the defensive, never leaving an opening, but drifting through steadily with countering, left hooks, and right crosses to the head and body to give him a margin on points.

But to a wide majority of the critics, it seemed that Schmeling had earned the right to retain his crown, even if not by any great margin.

For the entire 15 rounds, durable as a baby tank, the German marched into Sharkey, never breaking ground, counter-punching, and inflicting the only real damage that showed in the entire distance. His short, right-hand jolts to the head, started Sharkey's left eye drooping in the early rounds and closed it completely in the last three.

Max Misses Often

He missed a great many punches, short swings that Sharkey pulled away from as he concentrated doggedly on his plan of battle—jab, hook, counter, and retreat. At times he seemed to lose the tactical error of jabbing with the long armed New Englander, and when he did that Sharkey seemed to be beating him to the punch.

That sort of milling made a fight in which there never was a really thrilling moment, never a touch of the dramatic and the spectacular that the faithful have come to expect of their heavyweight title fights.

For the first three rounds, at least, Sharkey's battle plan, drilled into him all through his long conditioning grind, worked to perfection. He kept Max off balance with his left jabs, losing his left hook and right cross only when the opening loomed large, always in retreat, but always piling up points.

Then for a couple of rounds the sun blackened German, never discouraged, never changing his forcing tactics, plodded past Sharkey's guard, belting his head with short rights, and reaching him with an occasional jab.

Jack Sharkey Controlled

But then Sharkey waged out again, through the half-way point, more self-controlled than ever before in a career that includes his famous blow-up against Jack Dempsey, his tired efforts when a choice of Gene Tunney's last ring foe was up for decision, and his erratic punching that cost him the first Schmeling battle.

So it went until the last three rounds, unspurred, unexciting milling that failed to enflame a gathering that paid over $400,000 for the Garden and the Free Milk Fund for Babies, Inc.

In the stretch it was Schmeling, and not the new champion, who seemed to be winning as he plugged

Joe Jacobs Hurls Charges of Plot To Rob Schmeling

New York (AP)—In the excitement of his warrior's losing the heavyweight championship, Joe Jacobs charged that there had been a deliberate plot, hatching for the past month, to rob Max Schmeling of the title.

"A couple of weeks ago," he charged as he stormed in Schmeling's dressing room, "I told newspapermen and it was printed that I would not allow Schmeling to leave his dressing room if a certain referee was named to officiate in his match with Jack Sharkey."

"But the boxing commission insisted that we would get a square deal, even though I had every confidence in the source of my information. So we went in and got robbed. And the referee I referred to two weeks ago was the referee in that ring last night, Gunboat Smith."

Expect 290 Will Win Open Title

Declare Course as Tough
As Oakmont; Par is Misleading 70

Flushing, N. Y. (AP)—They were waging today that a score of 290 will be good enough to win this year's national open golf championship, the 72-hole marathon opening tomorrow over the Fresh Meadow Country club course.

It is, they say, the sternest golfing test ever devised for the open, excepting only Oakmont, where Tommy Armour's 301 was sufficient to win in 1928. Some declare it is as tough as Oakmont.

Par for the layout is a misleading 70. Few ever have equalled perfect figures in competition and only one, Leo Diegel, has scored a 69 from the championship tees.

MacDonald Smith, complained yesterday the course was too long, giving the fellows who shut their eyes and bang the ball a mile a minute an advantage over those whose main forte is accuracy. It was pointed out to the veteran Scot, however, that accuracy is an equal virtue. Fresh Meadow, The myriad traps and bunkers exact a toll for every shot that strays from bounds, and it is as easy to shoot an eight as a four on any given hole.

The 150-odd entries, drawn from every section of the country as well as from Japan, England and Argentina, had a final opportunity to tune up their strokes today. A crowd of tournament proportions was expected to see the peerless Bobby Jones play in a friendly foursome today with Gene Sarazen and a couple of amateurs.

along, as fresh as though he had just been warming up for a dozen rounds. In the occasional punching, he hurt Sharkey with rights to the head. Sharkey's left eye closed tight. But still the sailor boxed, jabbing, hooking, rearing, piling up points.

But to a wide majority of the critics, it seemed that Schmeling had earned the right to retain his crown, even if not by any great margin.

Collegians and Merchants Play In Exhibition

Appleton's Two Ball Clubs
Stage Practice Game
At Brandt Park

APPLETON baseball team in the Fox River Valley league will play a practice game beginning at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening with the Appleton Merchants of the Little Fox league. The game will be played at Brandt park.

The practice games have been arranged to give the Collegian youngsters and regulars some much needed practice. Last week the club went down to Dale and came back with a one-sided win.

Several changes will be made in the Collegian lineup for tomorrow evening. Bobbie Verstegen will perform at short and Hunter Lake probably will cavort in the left garden.

Eddie Donegan who played with Appleton last season again will be seen with the team tomorrow night and hereafter. He will take over third base which position has been given up by George Schultz, who is returning to his home in Michigan. Donegan played with Appleton for a time last year and is a former State leaguer.

Schultz is leaving the club to take a job. He has been with the team most of the season and has turned in some neat fielding exhibitions and done some mighty timely swatting. His bat average at the time the last standings were made known was the best of any Appleton regular.

Art Behr and Dats Crowe will hurt for Appleton while anyone of several hurlers will work for the Merchants. The Merchants are runners up in the Little Fox loop.

An admission charge of 15 cents will be made tomorrow evening. Because of the rivalry between the teams a fair sized crowd is expected.

Bridge in Evening

An afternoon and evening of golf and social entertainment has been mapped out for Butte des Morts members for Thursday.

The day's program will start with golf in the afternoon with prizes awarded for low scores. There will be a stag dinner at the club house after the golf games are completed and after that there will be a bridge and other indoor entertainment.

Cards announcing the program have been sent to all members of the club. The men also will discuss plans for the second annual jamboree which may be held in July.

Lefty Grove Out of Series With Chi Sox

Chicago (AP)—Lefty Grove probably will not try for his twelfth straight victory, and his thirteenth of the American league season, during the present series with the trail Chicago White Sox.

Grove, who defeated the Sox for his sixteenth straight last season, to tie the all-time league record, suffered a wrenched ankle Sunday, and is not likely to start again until the Athletics return home.

THE NEW CHAMPION OF THE WORLD

Valley League Gossip

KAUKAUNA continued its victory spree at the expense of Wisconsin Rapids by the score of 7 to 2. The Rapids look like the class of the Valley circuit but the Kaws have little trouble beating them whenever they lock horns.

Shawano threw a scare into Kimberly but the Indians belated rally fell one run short and the Papermakers wended homeward on the long end of a 7-6 count. Shawano's largest crowd was treated to one thrill after another.

Another southpaw, Specs Eastling of Wisconsin Rapids, was handled pretty rough on Sunday as Kaukauna chased him to the showers in the second stanza. Biot, who replaced Eastling only allowed one run during the remainder of the tilt.

Jerry Kral, veteran Shawano manager, put himself on the spot in the ninth frame of the Kimberly game. The tying run was on second base and Jerry stepped into the pinch hitter's role but he was unable to produce a single off Seamer Zeneziski.

Appleton showed two new players in the Green Bay combat. Christman, who has been performing down around Racine, made a

Hribernik, who was one of the leading swatmen in the Valley loop last season, has been finding it pretty slim picking off the portersiders. The Rapids' outfielder is only biffing 250. This is a hundred points below normal.

Shorty Wenzel must have found his batting eye before the Wisconsin Rapids game because the Kaukauna backstop came across with a double and single. These two blows were responsible for five of the markers chalked up by the Kaws.

President C. O. Baetz viewed the Appleton game from the Green Bay bench and some of his friends in the College City hurled a few razberries at the direction of the league executive about his new job as "mascot" for the Bays.

Dupont, a recruit first sacker, turned in a good exhibition at first base for Kimberly in place of the veteran Skell. Dupont got two hits out of five trips to the plate besides fielding splendidly around the initial station.

Don Morgan, Green Bay backstop, had a field day against Appleton. He cracked out a homer and then followed through with a triple. Morgan pegs as well as any catcher in the loop and he specializes in picking runners off first base.

Fahrenkrug, Kimberly's "boy scout" pitcher, breezed along like a major leaguer for seven innings against Shawano but bumped into trouble in the eighth inning and Manager Joe Muench jerked him off the slab in order to have the game.

Red Smith, one of the famous Smith clan from Kaukauna, had a perfect day with the stick against Wisconsin Rapids. Red got three out of three. This is a good day's work for a diamond performer who is still on the invalid list.

"Dats" Crowe is getting along better than ever on the pitcher's mound this season. The elongated hurler has developed more speed and his "roundhouse" curve is breaking fast. Crowe is a handy man as he can perform in the outfield, too.

Bud Reed is playing brilliant ball for Shawano at shortstop. The youngster is a sure shot on a ground ball and can go a long way on either side. Early in the season, he wasn't hitting so well but he is getting his bingles often now.

Johnny Kuenn, who was leading the league in hitting skadded from his high perch during the last two games. He got out one hit in seven times at bat. The Rapids' shortstop fizzled twice with the bags populated against Kaukauna.

Manager Rosenberg has shaken his Green Bay line up. Irish Wall has been sent back to the outfield while Skimmer Becker is doing duty at shortstop. Becker celebrated the change in position by getting three hits in the Appleton tilt.

Joe Muench, the Kimberly manager, is swinging his bat at a 350 clip these days. Muench has been playing ball around these parts for years but never has hit harder than this year besides playing bang up ball at shortstop.

The big game on Sunday is scheduled for Green Bay where the Sox and Kaukauna will tangle in a first place battle. Appleton is scheduled to resume its diamond feud with Kimberly while Shawano will perform at Wisconsin Rapids.

WALLY Klein, Co. D., hurler, with a patch over one eye and two fingers taped up was a better man than the American legion last night and pitched the Guardsmen to a 5 and 4 win over the vets. The win moved Co. D. into undoubted second place in league competition and dropped the legion to third place.

The game was closely played, featured a lot of good and fair baseball and a couple skirmishes around home plate that would have done justice to a little line plunging near somebody's goal line.

Klein struck out six batters, allowed four hits and walked none. Lothar Graef opposed him and gave seven hits, walked none and struck out two.

The Guards scored one run in the second inning to take the lead. Helms tallied after getting a hit and scored on a hit by Kneip. The latter died on base.

One run in the third tied the score and two in the fourth put the Legion ahead 3 and 1. Witte and Graef counted during a few seconds that the Guards were throwing the ball around the diamond.

Co. D. tied the score at three all in the sixth when DeYoung got on a hit and was driven home by Wally Klein's line drive to the band stand. Wally died at third.

The legion had a chance to get ahead in the first of the eighth but Bauer's blocked the plate when Hartzheim tried to score. Vic went over the top and Johnny tagged him before he could get back to the rubber.

After Currie has been caught at the plate in the eighth, the Guards kept battering away, and finally chased two runs across to take a two run lead. Bauer and DeYoung did the scoring.

The Legion threatened in the ninth when Hartzell scored and Witte was on third base. There was one away then and things didn't look good. Graef fanned for the second out and Hardacker fled to right field and the Guards won.

The Veterans played without several regulars but managed to make it a great contest.

Mrs. Harper Loses

Defeated by Kathleen Stammers, New English
Net Sensation

Wimbledon, Eng. (AP)—The American contingent of 11 in the British tennis championships has made its first general charge with only one casualty.

Mrs. L. A. Harper, California star had the misfortune to be drawn in the first round of women's singles against Kathleen Stammers, youthful English girl who has been a sensation this year, and was beaten in three sets, 6-6, 6-1, 7-5.

But Ellsworth Vines, John Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison, Frank Shields, Sidney Wood and Gregory Mangin all were victorious in the men's singles division and Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs easily advanced in women's singles.

Although still erratic, Vines eliminated a little known Briton, H. S. Burrows, 6-1, 6-2, 3-6 and 6-3 and advanced to the third round where his opponent will be Harry Hopman, Australian who conquered the American champion in the Queen's club tournament last week.

Wood and Mangin accompanied Vines into the third round, while Shields, Van Ryn and Allison, just off the boat, played their first matches.

Only Allison and Van Ryn were to play in singles today, the former being matched with A. Tloczynski of Poland and the latter with J. D. P. Wheatley.

In women's singles, Mrs. Moody who swamped Fraulien M. R. Courquerie with the loss of only two games yesterday, was to meet Miss Bower of England, and Miss Jacobs was paired against Mrs. Phyllis Covell. Sarah Paley and Dorothy Anders Burke were to play their first round matches, the former meeting Mrs. E. M. Dearnan and the latter tackling Miss Dyson.

In men's doubles, Allison and Van Ryn were matched against the Grandguillot brothers of Egypt.

New York — Jack Sharkey, Boston, outpointed Max Schmeling, Germany, world heavyweight champion, (15) won championship; Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., outpointed Hans Bieker, Germany, (5); Lou Barba, New York, outpointed Jerry Pavelic, New York (5); James J. Braddock, Jersey City, outpointed Vincent Parrille, Argentine (5).

Pitches No-Hit Game
But Loses Decision

Decatur, Ill. (AP)—Joe Noonan, 21 year old college graduate from California, made his debut in organized baseball by pitching a no-hit game for Danville, Ill., but today he was down in the records of the three-I league as the losing pitcher.

Decatur won the game here last night by a score of 1 to 0, although Noonan allowed not a semblance of a hit for nine innings, struck out seven opposing batsmen and only walked two. Errors helped Decatur to victory.

First baseman Walters got on first in the sixth due to a walk and a forceout and stole second. Noonan's next pitch was high and Walters raced to third. The Danville catcher retrieved the ball and threw it wildly to third, allowing Walters to score.

Noonan is a product of St. Mary's college of California.

Interest Is Still There
According to Fred Mitchell former big league manager and present baseball coach at Harvard, there has been no diminishing interest in college baseball from the playing standpoint. Harvard squads are just as large as they were 10 years ago, and take the game just as seriously.

Mills Holding Three Point Lead in A. A.

Indianapolis Helps Its Cause by Cracking Milwaukee Twice

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO — (AP) — There may have been tighter races for the leadership of the American Association, but the three-way struggle now going on should be close enough to spoil the rest of Columbus, Minneapolis and Indianapolis ball players.

The Mills today still had a lead of three percentage points over Columbus, but Indianapolis, hitting on all nine again after a slump, was only one game behind the leaders. Columbus and Minneapolis divided their afternoon and evening bill yesterday, the Mills scoring all their runs in the first two rounds for a 7 to 5 victory, in the afternoon, and the Birds rallying for two runs in the ninth to take the evening battle, 5 to 4.

Indianapolis improved its standing by cracking Milwaukee twice, 7 to 4, and 6 to 4, with Ernie Wiegman, but not the least important factor in both triumphs. After pitching the Indians to victory Monday night, old Ernie came back yesterday to play first base in both games. He contributed two home runs, knocking in four runs in the first game, and his triple accounted for another in the second.

Saints Trip Hens Twice

St. Paul finally brought the ambitious Toledo Mud Hens to a halt, winning both games of a bargain offering. A home run, double and single gave the Saints a 10 to 9 decision in the second game, after Russ Van Atta had done some good hurling to gain a 9 to 4 edge in the opener. The Saints belted out 16 hits in the first game, four of them by Cedric Durst. Durst's collection included a triple and a double.

Kansas City and Louisville whacked up their pair, the Blues winning in the afternoon, 9 to 1, and the Colonels pulling up even by winning at night, 8 to 4. Pete Monahan clouted out a home run, double and a single to lead the Blues in the afternoon, while Joe Dawson pitched six-hit ball. Bubber Jonnard was just as good in the night game, holding Kansas City to five hits. He had one bad inning, the third, when the Blues did all their scoring, but was effective outside of that.

Chicago Would Like Cubs, Yanks in Series

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS
Copyright, 1932
CHICAGO — (CPA) — Chicago's baseball fans are cheering for a world's series between the Cubs and New York Yankees. Ordinarily your Cub fan would not give two raps what team won the pennant in the American league but this year he, and she—for the Bruins have a tremendous feeling following—gives three rousing yips each time the Yankees score a victory.

Chicago is not particularly interested in seeing Babe Ruth reach his tenth world's series, for the Bam can be seen over at the White Sox park eleven games per season. Nor does the city get excited over the feats of Lefty Gomez, Ben Chapman or any other Yankee.

But Chicago does want to see its old favorite, Joe McCarthy, matching wits and verbiage with Rogers Hornsby in the big series. Joe, it will be remembered, bossed the Cubs for five seasons and led them to a pennant in 1929. McCarthy was repaid by being released from the Cub management in the fall of the 1930 season and many of the Chicago followers have never felt quite right about it. Hence the steaming desire to see McCarthy and Hornsby, the man who succeeded him, as opponents in the world's series.

Hornsby Greater Leader

Hornsby, unquestionably a great baseball leader, still is in disfavor with many Cubs and when he came to bat during his recent attempt to play right field he always was greeted with a salvo of jeers that would be drowned out by a heavier blast of cheering. Of course if Rogers can bring the Cubs into the pennant most of the animosity will be forgotten. Still Joe McCarthy was a real popular fellow on the north side and he will find many supporters among Cub fans if he takes the Yankees out there for world's series games.

The Cubs are managing to hold top place in the National league on their eastern trip. That's encouraging to their followers. The Bruins are a great home team and the walls of Wrigley field seem to put extra blasting power into Chicago bats. Unable to secure a much desired outfielder before the league limit on trading went into effect the Cubs must go along with the players they have. They will do rather well now that Cuyler is back in the lineup if Riggs Stephenson's legs stand the strain of daily campaigning. Cuyler and Stephenson swing potent bats and John-

Dean Returns to Card Staff; Beats New York Giants

Cubs Blast 14 Hits and Win Easily from Philadelphia

BY HERBERT W. BARKEE
Associated Press Sports Writer
JEROME Herman Dean, eccentric right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, perhaps is trying to discover whether the best way to Manager Gabby Street's heart is through gut-edged pitching.

The dizzy one, whose career with the Cardinals has been one big argument after another, quit the team cold a few days ago in Philadelphia. He repented as quickly, returned to the fold and perhaps earned full forgiveness yesterday when he scopped the New York Giants cold with six hits to win a 5-1 decision.

Dean blanked the Giants for eight innings but saw a possible shutout vanish in the ninth when Mel Ott doubled and Frank Hogan singled. Meantime the Chicago Cubs were increasing their National league lead by trouncing the Phillies, 12-3 while the second place Boston Braves accepted a 9-3 beating from Cincinnati.

Cubs Get 14 Hits

The Cubs blasted out 14 hits, including home runs by Moore and Hartnett, to win easily behind Pat Malone's steady pitching. Chuck Klein's nineteenth homer with one on accounted for two Philly runs. Babe Herman had a field day with a home run and three singles as the Reds checked the Braves. Ray Kolp

Fred Heilmach pitched effectively and hit a home run and a single, driving in three runs, as Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh, 9-3, and went into a tie with the Pirates for third place.

Chad Kimsey's three base wild throw of a sacrifice bunt permitted the New York Yankees to score three runs in the ninth, beat the St. Louis Browns, 11-5, and increase their lead in the American league. Lou Gehrig hit his fifteenth homer with two on in the third.

The Philadelphia Athletics got only six hits off Milt Gaston and the Chicago White Sox walked off with a 3-1 decision, punching hits off Rube Walberg for all their runs in the eighth. George Uhle's pinch triple in the ninth gave Detroit a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Washington pounded Jack Russell off the mound in the eighth, scored five runs and won 8-3.

"My Son Is Champion," Maxie's Mother Says

Berlin — (AP) — Max Schmeling's mother is convinced he won the fight with Jack Sharkey at New York last night, in spite of the decision.

She listened to the report of the fight over the radio in her home, surrounded by a group of friends.

"I heard the fight—every bit of it," she said. "My son, and only my son, is the world champion, I am firmly convinced. I telegraphed him that, too."

The words of Mayor Walker of New York were soiling to German listeners. "In my humble opinion, Schmeling should have won," the mayor's voice said, coming through the microphones.

Fifth Ward Tigers Cop From Shamrocks, 6 to 5

Fifth ward Tigers staged a four run rally in the eighth inning of a softball game with the Shamrocks yesterday and won the decision 6 and 5. The Tigers took a two run lead in the first inning and held the Shamrocks scoreless until the fourth when the Rocks scored five markers. They then led until the eighth when the Tigers rallied and copped.

Members of the Shamrocks were C. Mitchell, S. Summers, H. Del-

Hoover Proposes Cut by One-third In World's Arms

Favors Abolition of Tanks, Chemical Warfare and Big Mobile Guns

world have agreed that they will use their arms solely for defense.

"Second: This reduction should be carried out not only by broad general cuts in armaments but by increasing the comparative power of defense through decreases in the power of the attack.

"Third: The armaments of the world have grown up in general mutual relation to each other. And, speaking generally, such relation should be preserved in making reductions.

"Fourth: The reductions must be real and positive. They must first effect economic relief.

"Fifth: There are three problems to deal with—land forces, air forces, and naval forces. They are all inter-connected. No other part of the proposals which I make can be dissociated one from the other."

Asks Cut By Third

The president paused significantly after enunciating this part of his statement, and then added:

"Based on these principles, I propose that the arms of the world should be reduced by nearly one-third."

It was learned from highly authoritative sources in the capital today, that Mr. Hoover has no idea that the United States should act alone upon the principles he proposed, but would do so only if the other major powers should accept them.

As analyzed here today, the president's proposals would have less effect upon the American army and navy than those of European powers. Figures are available here to show that the American army has been demobilized below the police component given Germany and the other states following the war, which Mr. Hoover would use as a yardstick for measuring the size of all armies.

America's bombing planes, tanks and chemical warfare, of course, would fall under the proposed ban. Other figures available here show that the American navy has not been built up to treaty strength, and that the effect of the proposals upon this country would be to bring the treaty limits down to about the ratio now enjoyed by the American navy.

Unemployment Not Hit

Mr. Hoover feels that since some time would be required for the adoption of his proposals, there would be no immediate reduction of personnel, and thus no addition to the unemployment problem.

Several of the chief executive's aides and cabinet officers have compiled figures to show that the United States could save approximately $2,000,000,000 in expenditures over the next 10 years.

Mr. Hoover feels personally that the United States, under the proposed slashes in arms, would be more secure in defense than it is today, since the power of attack of all nations would be reduced.

It was announced with great emphasis in the capital today that although President Hoover's proposals for armament reduction have been discussed at Geneva for some time, they have not been mentioned in connection with war debt reductions.

It was stated on the highest authority that no such suggestions have been made by the United States in order to secure arms slashes. Mr. Hoover is known to feel personally that such a proposal—war debt reduction contingent upon armament reduction—would be offensive to the dignity of European nations.

President Hoover's suggestion today goes further than the original American nine-point program submitted at Geneva on Feb. 9 by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, acting head of the American delegation.

Further Naval Cuts

The Hoover plan embraces additional cuts in naval armaments in the battleship and cruiser classes and is a radical modification of the program submitted by Gibson. The latter advocated the abolition of submarines, while the Hoover proposal permits the retention of a small submarine tonnage, probably a concession to France.

Gibson particularly stressed the necessity for the reduction of offensive arms, that is great mobile guns and tanks which are suitable for attack upon a foreign power rather than defense. This form of armament has been particularly discussed by the American delegates at Geneva as the cause of the fear of attack from outside which has prevented European nations from agreeing to any reduction.

Gibson and his associates have proposed limitations in various categories in a very general way.

Space Bands Pilfered From Newspaper Office

Marshfield.—(P)—For a time today editors of the Marshfield News-Herald feared they would have to print a newspaper which would look something like this.

Some time last night a thief broke into the print shop and stole all the space bands, the little gadgets that provide the spaces between words on a Linotype slug. This morning the editors had all the words, but nothing to put between them.

A tramp printer, one of the happy vagabonds of the old school of journalism, is suspected. Space bands would make pretty good sinkers on a fish line, but so far police have not molested fishermen. They are looking for an inky gentleman with a pocket full of spacebands.

Ohio Honors Memory of Great Indian Fighter

Cadiz, Ohio.—(P)—Ohio's belated tribute to one of its most colorful and illustrious warriors, Major General George A. Custer, whose command was massacred by Indians at the battle of Little Big Horn in Montana, was paid today, when a memorial was unveiled at New Rumley, near here, Custer's birthplace. The memorial was made possible by a $15,000 appropriation of the Ohio general assembly four years ago.

ISLAND JAILS POPULAR

Natives of the Gilbert and Ellice islands in the mid-Pacific, are treated better in island prisons than at home, according to the British Colonial report, just issued. "No air of gloom pervades a Gilbertese or Ellice prison, nor does the fact of being imprisoned carry any social stigma," it is stated. "While insistence upon punctuality and industry is strictly maintained, there exists no spirit of rancor between prisoners and warders. Rations provided being slightly more abundant than a native is able to afford in his own home, and the discipline of work, food and sleep being far more regular than those which he would ordinarily observe, he usually leaves prison a heavier and healthier man than he was at the time of his conviction."

See Precedent In Attitude of Senator Borah

Republican Platform is Really of Great Advan-

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Exercising the privilege specifically granted him by the Republican national platform—namely, the right to be spared a choice between honest conviction and party affiliation—Senator Borah of Idaho has set a precedent which will allow every public official or candidate, even the president himself, to interpret the prohibition plank as he pleases without being considered a deserter from the Republican ranks.
Mr. Borah says he will not support Mr. Hoover on the prohibition plank. He does not say he will oppose the president's reelection or that he is at variance with other planks of the platform.
The speech of the Idaho senator corroborates the argument that the Republican platform plank was wet. Many people who heard only the debate between the Butler-Bingham minority at the convention and the majority jumped to the conclusion that the majority favored a dry plank. What Mr. Borah says about the majority plank—he calls it a virtual demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment—is in line with the interpretations made by disinterested observers the moment the language of the majority plank was disclosed.

Plank Favors Vote
The galleries at Chicago and many wets who did not examine the plank carefully failed to see that, notwithstanding a few phrases that were intended as a sop to the dries, the majority plank favored a vote on the question of scrapping the eighteenth amendment and putting in its place a new amendment permitting liquor of any alcoholic content to be sold, if the states desired it, subject only to the provision that the manner of sale shall not be through the saloon.
As a practical proposition, the fact that the majority plank if translated into action meant the return of beer, light wines or whiskey was the all-important proposition which the dries recognized as meaning the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, for they knew that under the Canadian system liquor is lawfully distributed without the saloon, the regulation being to avoid drinking on the premises where liquors are sold.
Mr. Borah intimated that a straight out repeal clause would have been preferable. What he means, of course, is that the dries would have a better chance of carrying more than one-third of congress or more than one-fourth of the states in blocking any repeal whatsoever if the issue were confined to retention or repeal than they would have if the proposed amendment accompanied the repeal idea with a comprehensive substitute.

Dangerous Wedge
The majority plank really drives a more dangerous wedge into the dry camp than the Bingham-Butler proposition. For while the latter would have gratified the big eastern and middle western wet states, it would secretly have gratified the dries who think that they could beat it in more than 13 states. Their cry would have been that straight repeal without a substitute is chaos.
Mr. Borah's attack on the majority plank adopted by the Republicans is that it means ultimate repeal and that the Republican party is inclining itself toward repeal. But nothing in the plank reveals any such commitment on the part of the Republican party. All the plank says is that the people shall have an opportunity of passing on the question of a new amendment. It does not recommend that all Republican candidates for congress shall vote for such a new amendment. It does not argue that a congressman who voted "no" on any new amendment in substitution for the eighteenth amendment would be violating his party platform.
It is in many respects a resubmission proposition and therefore in keeping with the principle that the people periodically have a right to vote yes or no on constitutional questions.
Minority Proposal
The Bingham-Butler minority plank did have in it an implication that the Republican party be committed to repeal because the text of the minority plank said, "we recommend that congress immediately propose an amendment repealing the eighteenth amendment," etc. Congress cannot "propose" except by a flat declaration that "the eighteenth amendment is hereby repealed" and such a proposal must have a two-thirds vote in its favor before it can be submitted to the states.

The majority plank, on the other hand, permits a substitute amendment to be drawn which, while repealing the eighteenth amendment, replaces it with a new amendment on which conceivably two-thirds of congress could vote "aye," especially if the amendment contains safeguards against the saloon and protection against invasion of the dry states by the liquor interests seeking to sell their wares.
Borah's Attitude
What Mr. Borah objects to is that congress should agree to permit the states to legalize the sale of alcoholic beverages. He thinks the federal government should retain power over this question and it is possible he may take the view of the Wickersham commission, which recommended a new amendment giving congress complete power to regulate the liquor traffic.
Before the end of the campaign the prohibition planks adopted at Chicago will bring many differences of interpretation and opinion inside the Democrats as well as the Republican party. Published statements reveal that Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate, favors resubmission of the repeal question without a commitment by his party in favor of repeal. This is the start of more debate, the upshot of which will be that there will not be a sharp cleavage between the presidential

Lay Cornerstone Tomorrow at New College Building

At 2 O'clock

The cornerstone of the J. A. Kimberly Memorial library at the Institute of Paper Chemistry will be laid by J. C. Kimberly at 2:30 Thursday afternoon on the South campus of Lawrence college, according to Institute officials in charge of the ceremony.
The Writing Paper Manufacturer's association, meeting here for its annual convention, will attend the ceremony and inspect the first Institute building before returning to the North Shore Country club for its afternoon session.
The $100,000 structure, donated by J. C. Kimberly as a memorial to his father who was one of the first students enrolled at Lawrence college after the completion of Main hall in 1833, is the second important building unit at the graduate school affiliated with the college.
Mr. Kimberly's gift was announced last September at the time candidates or the two parties sufficiently clear to call one party dry and the other wet. They will both be wet but in differing degrees.

of the dedication of the $250,000 structure now in use. The new building will be completed for dedicatory services this September, it is believed.
Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of the college and director of the Institute will speak at 2 o'clock on the need for and the proposed uses of the new building. He will be followed at 2:10 by Ernest Mahler, Neenah, president of the Institute board of trustees, who will speak briefly on why it is appropriate that the building should be a Kimberly Memorial. Immediately following, Mr. Kimberly will lay the cornerstone and there will be open house at the first Institute building.

Boat Owners Organize at Oshkosh Meet

Appleton Men Elected Di- rectors of New Valley Association

Organization of a Fox River Valley Motor Boat association was effected last night following a cruise of Appleton, Neenah, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac Yacht and Boat clubs on Lake Winnebago, at the Oshkosh Power Boat clubhouse on Lake Butte des Morts. Five Appleton boats, and 32 Appleton people participated in the cruise and attended the Oshkosh conference.

Judge Fred V. Heinemann of the Fox River Boat club, Appleton, and Dr. A. L. Koch of the Appleton Yacht club were among those elected to the board of directors. Other directors are: Oscar Mueller, Pierce Perrell and Joseph Rupp, Fond du Lac; Jack Kimberly and George Mowry Smith, Neenah; and George Savage and Arthur Schroeder, Oshkosh. Fond du Lac Yacht club will sponsor the 1933 cruise, it was reported.

The association was organized to promote and foster the sport of boating, guard and protect the interests of members who are owners of power boats, encourage and conduct cruises and club runs, and to encourage harmony and good fellowship among its members in every manner.

Elected Officers

Association officers are to be elected at a meeting of the newly elected board of directors in the near future. General officers will be fleet captain, lieutenant fleet captain, and secretary and treasurer.

Membership in the association is to be limited to yacht and boat clubs and individual members from Appleton, Neenah, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. According to a report made at the meeting last evening, the Appleton Yacht club will have a 100 per cent membership in the organization.

Speakers at the meeting were: Capt. C. H. Howard, Milwaukee, of the U. S. Lighthouse service; Lieut. T. G. Montgomery, Milwaukee, U. S. War department official; Frank Keefe, Oshkosh, Winnebago-co district attorney; Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Appleton; John Balliet, Appleton boat owner, and mayors of Fond du Lac and Oshkosh.

Boats owned and piloted by Dr. Koch, Judge Heinemann, Mr. Balliet, William Storm and James Martin participated in the cruise. The Appleton fleet sailed up to the Fox river to Neenah where they were met by the Neenah fleet. The combined fleet then sailed to Oshkosh where it was met by boats from Oshkosh Power Boat club and the Fond du Lac Yacht club. After a cruise on Lake Winnebago the entire fleet of 41 boats crossed Lake Butte des Morts to the Oshkosh clubhouse.

Claflin Sport Stories to Describe Fishing Grounds

BY BERT CLAFLIN

Now that school is over for the summer thousands of tourists are heading for the cool north country, for the great network of lakes and streams for which Wisconsin is so noted. Every species of inland game fish can be taken in these waters if one knows where to seek them. I have been writing these tips on where to go for over ten years, and I have received thousands of requests from people all over the Middle States for advice on the best waters for taking the various kinds of fish. These requests are increasing each year. Last year over 3,000 letters came to me.

I have been criticized by certain selfish individuals because I help those not so well posted to find good fishing. They say: "The fish will soon all be caught out of our waters," and "the people outside of our state have no right to come here and catch our fish, they belong to the residents of Wisconsin," and so on. But they lose sight of the fact that those tourists leave in Wisconsin every year approximately $100,000,000.

They also lose sight of the fact that north of a line drawn east and west through the center of the state that portion of country is almost wholly dependent upon the tourist business. Those who criticize then would do far better to help our Conservation Commission maintain this great asset.

Plans Trips

Beginning with this article and continuing through consecutive descriptions I shall point out definitely such waters as I know from personal experience to be good for taking every species of game fish known to Wisconsin waters, such as muskies, bass, northern pike, pickerel, trout, bluegills, lake trout, rock bass and the other types of lesser pan fishes. By retaining these articles my readers will have a reliable guide to many of the best angling waters we have.

Today let's consider the musky, the "tiger of the fresh water." Practically all lakes and streams of any depth which flow into the Mississippi River contain them. Such waters as Lac View Desert, the Manitowish River with its many connections, the Turtle River, the Flambeau, the Chippewa, Sawyer County's many lakes, the Namekagon and Cable region, the Butternut waters, are best known as musky territory. The advantage of fishing them lies in the fact that while they have the fresh water tigers they also have other game fish as well. In my article for Saturday I shall point out definitely some of the best spots in the region I have outlined. So watch for it, and keep the clippings for reference.

Winton, Pioneer Auto Maker, Dies

Cleveland Man Known as First Commercial Auto- mobile Manufacturer

Cleveland—(AP)—One of the most famous men of the automotive industry, Alexander Winton, Sr., who was generally known as the first commercial manufacturer of an automobile, died at his home here last night at the age of 72. He had been ill two weeks.

Long before the world ever dreamed the part automobiles were to play in modern life, Winton was building cars in a little Cleveland factory and his first automobile was running on the streets of this city as early as 1895.

By 1903, while the infant industry was still generally confined to "one-lungers" and "two-lungers," according to the number of cylinders, Mr. Winton had built an eight-cylinder racing car, which he entered and drove that year in the James Gordon Bennett cup race in Ireland.

In those days, an automobile still looked like a demigogical monster to many people, and Winton lost the race, he said later, because someone put candles in the gasoline tank to "keep away the devil."

Mr. Winton accumulated a large fortune in succeeding years, much of which he spent in wide and successful experiments for improvements. For many years, his Cleveland factory manufactured automobiles but suspended this business in 1924.

Although several other inventors made and operated automobiles before Mr. Winton, he was generally known as the first to manufacture them for sale.

One of the pioneer's favorite stories of the early days of the industry, concerned the first automobile trip ever made from Cleveland to New York, and its demoralizing effect upon sundry horses and horsemen. That was in 1897.

Driving a two-cylinder car, Mr.

Winton was approaching Painesville, Ohio, when two horses, taking freight, tore loose from a wagon and bolted over a fence, leaving the wagon overturned with its occupants beneath, unhurt but very much disgruntled over the manufacturer's "consigned contraption."

Construction work on Panama Canal, Madden dam and various highways in Panama is maintained at a rapid pace.

Congress Not To Finish Job During Week

Expects to Remain in Session Until Middle of Coming Week

Washington (AP)—Congress now expects to remain in session until the middle of next week, through at least part of the Democratic national convention which opens in Chicago Monday.

The expectation is based on the senate's deliberate slowing up in its consideration of the highly controversial unemployment relief bill, which is now the only major trouble spot on the congressional program. An agreement for a final vote today on the bill was sought, but even this was generally believed to be coming too late for adjournment by Saturday.

The leaders are pressing for hurry, and the house is to all intents twiddling thumbs until the senate catches up, but a decision last evening against staying in session on the relief bill registered a definite disinclination to quit this week.

Before the vote against a night session was taken, 38 to 32, Senator Borah (R., Idaho) remarked it would be impossible to adjourn by Saturday, and others chimed in with the same idea. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said he had hoped to get to the convention and proposed an agreement to limit debate after this evening. He withdrew it temporarily but a decision on it was expected today.

Eye Convention

Whatever his feeling, there was an idea current that some of the Democrats preferred giving abundant consideration to an issue like that of unemployment instead of going to Chicago and getting enmeshed in the prohibition argument. Of those who did not share this view a good many prepared to go to Chicago anyway. "These, Bill of Washington, Warden of Montana, Hull of Tennessee, left yesterday.

The relief bill made little progress yesterday but a vote was expected early in today's session on the most disputed point, the section carrying a $500,000,000 bond issue for federal public works. Once this is passed, comparatively little time is expected to be given the mass of amendments which have been offered from the floor, so that passage by tonight was possible.

A troublesome conference with the house is next in prospect, to reconcile the senate's bill with the Garner $2,300,000,000 measure bitterly denounced by President Hoover.

The economy bill issue was viewed as settled although the senate

M'Laren Named Head Of Forestry Office

Duluth, Minn.—John McLaren, of Milwaukee, will arrive here July 1 to assume charge of the local office of the federal forestry service, succeeding William L. Barker, Jr., transferred to Milwaukee.

Mr. Barker has been named national forest examiner in charge of acquisition work and public relations in the lake states. Barker has been with the forestry service since 1910 and worked in Colorado, the Superior national forest in north-eastern Minnesota and at Munising, Mich., from whence he came to Duluth in 1930.

Commission Warns Against Courses Claims "Coaching" Courses Are Being Offered Falsely

The U. S. Civil Service commission is issuing warnings against paying money for "coaching" courses in preparation for federal civil service examinations, according to word received here by postal officials.

Schools which sell such courses under present conditions accept money under false pretenses, it was stated. A purveyor of civil service courses is now under indictment in Iowa for false representation. It is expected that other such cases of prosecution will follow.

Comparatively few appointments are being made in the federal service. Vacancies which must be filled by the transfer of those in the service or the reinstatement of those who have been in the service, wherever practicable, it said.

still had to adopt the conference report with changes made by the house, and send the bill to the White House.

Roosevelt Men
Lose at Polls
In Minnesota
Surprise Victory Won by
"Rumpers" of Party
In State Primaries
St. Paul (AP)—A surprise victory scored by Democratic "rump-ers" in Monday's state primaries was shaped into a weapon today in an effort to prevent seating of Minnesota's Roosevelt-instructed delegation to the national convention next week.
"Rumpers" who bolted the state convention when the delegation was chosen, said they will use the victory to bolster up charges that unfair methods were employed at the convention. The "rumpers" organized their own convention, selected an uninstructed delegation mostly favorable to Alfred E. Smith, and entered candidates in the primary in a successful effort to wrest control of the state party machinery from the "regulars" or Roosevelt group.
John E. Regan, who won the party's nomination for governor, asserted that the triumph of the "rumpers" state amounted to "re-pudication" of the Roosevelt convention endorsement. He said "the repudiation reflected growing sentiment throughout the nation."

a majority of places in the race for congressional nominations in which 38 candidates were entered for the three parties with nine nominated by each. Incomplete returns placed nine men favorable to resubmission in the lead for Democratic nominations. Eight of the Farmer-Labor leaders were favorable to resubmission with the position of the eighth,
John Paul Kvale, incumbent, un-canceled.
Eight of the leaders for Republican nominations favor resubmission or repeal of the 18th amendment with one out-and-out dry, W.
J. Holmberg, apparently assumed a place by strong rural support. Republican leaders include Harold Knutson, W. I. Nolan, William A.
Pittenger, August H. Andresen, and Melvin J. Mass, incumbents. Another incumbent, C. G. Selvig, a dry, threatened to replace Mass.
Two dry incumbents, Victor Chris-gau and Godfrey G. Goodwin, were apparently eliminated.

Plan Attack on

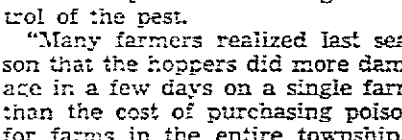

Hopper Invasion
Door-co Farmers Fear Destruction of Crops—Conduct Mass Meetings
Sturgeon Bay (AP)—Fearing a grasshopper invasion that will be destructive to crops, townships in Door-co have planned a concerted attack on the pest.
All except two townships have already voted appropriations for grasshopper control. Special meetings have been scheduled for each township by town boards which will divide each town into several smaller districts and appoint supervisors.
Townships will arrange for delivery of poison in the right quantities to farms listed on a survey sheet and the farmers will be expected to spread the poison. B. F. Rusy, county agent, and John H. Lilly of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, said a survey showed conclusively a need for rigid control of the pest.
"Many farmers realized last season that the hoppers did more damage in a few days on a single farm than the cost of purchasing poison for farms in the entire township," they said. "The fact that farm prices are low makes it more necessary to conserve what grain and forage crops are grown."
The townships hope to strike immediately because of the increased difficulty of killing the pests when they get their wings.

Wisconsin Department

Conducts Land Survey
Antigo (AP)—A land utilization survey, under the direction of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets, is under way in Langlade-co. The survey will attempt to determine the best utilization for every forty acres of land in the county.
The survey party, made up of 15 men, is encamped in the town of Upham. Dr. Sergius Wild, a Russian expert, is assisting in the soil investigation.
The first land survey was made in 1927 in Bayfield county. Sawyer county had a similar survey last

through such gatherings will on this occasion be herded by one who, in the Addisonian phrase, "rides in the whirlwind and directs the storm." We give you Arthur E. Mullen, of Omaha, tornado specialist—than whom, etc. The prevailing meteorology of national conventions indicates that the governor has made an opposite choice.

Mr. Mullen is a distinguished Omaha lawyer prominent in the the national democratic organization for many years. Like John E. Mack, who will place Governor Roosevelt in nomination, he was for six years a prosecuting attorney. A graduate of the Fremont, Neb., normal school and the University of Michigan law school, he was first a country lawyer, removing to Omaha in 1911. He was a member of the democratic national committee from 1916 to 1920. Since 1924, he has been a member of the democratic national committee from 1916 to 1920. Since 1924, he has been a member of the executive committee of the national committee. He was born in Canada and is 59 years old.

In 1920, however, he split with Bryan over Champ Clark, and the commoner and brother Charley, now Nebraska's governor, defeated him for democratic national committeeman. As attorney general of Nebraska, he fought for the Nebraska bank guarantee law and won a supreme court decision sustaining it. He is active in Catholic charity and has been decorated by Pope Pius. His suburban home is modeled after the Monticello of Jefferson, his political god.

The bulky and bullet-headed Premier Edouard Herriot of France appears to be the snag on which European debt adjustments are now caught. Passing the buck to the United States, he stalemates the Lausanne discussions, according to today's cables.

M. Herriot has made his political career by a highly nationalist appeal. When his radical-socialist party was all but sunk toward the end of the war, he attacked the defeatism of Joseph Caillaux and rode to the premiership. His leadership is now being attacked by the right, and the dominant left, while not hostile, maintains only a slight ac-

His official political trademark is a pipe, which he flourishes eloquently scattering ashes in this wake. He is a highly skilled politician but he never could make the franc behave. The singing session at meal times is just as important as the coach's presence as the daily work-out on the shell. Polishing up the "swiper," the boys learn how to pull together.

Ebright is a Washingtonian who, after several years of coaching California crews with indifferent results, attained a blazing victory at Poughkeepsie in 1928, with the latter Olympic triumphs. Program for Scout's Camp Is Outlined

Encampment for Valley Council Members Opens Aug. 7 at Waupaca

Valley Council boy scouts are anxiously waiting for Aug. 7 to roll around, for on that day the annual encampment opens at Onaway Island, Chain O' Lakes, Waupaca. The camp will be conducted up to and including Aug. 27, and for the four following days until Aug. 31, the three council Cub packs will attend camp.

Approximately 200 boy scouts, and 80 Cubs are expected to participate in this summer's encampment. The camp will be directed by M. G. Clark, valley scout executive, with the assistance of A. P. Jensen, former physical director at the V. M. C. A. Mr. Jensen will be in direct charge of all water-front activities and will be assisted by various troop leaders.

A diversified program of handicraft and camping projects is being prepared by scout leaders, and will be offered to scouts while they are at camp. The camp will be limited to 75 boys per week. Approximately 100 have already registered, according to Mr. Clark.

The valley scouts are without a camp of their own. Chicagami on Lake Winnebago has become too small, and two years ago their beautiful camp in the northwoods on Florence Lake was destroyed by fire. Last summer they attended camp at Twin Lakes reservation, Oshkosh camp, southwest of Waupaca.

Flower Boxes Add Charm to Windows

Ideal Size for Box is 3 1-2 Feet Long, 8 Inches Deep, 8 Inches Wide

City residents about this time of year commence to think of flower boxes to set on the front porch or attach to outside windows. These boxes with their brilliant blooms do more to brighten up a city home than all the artificial decorations thought of.

A good window box should be ample to support growth of five or six plants. An ideal size is about three and a half feet long, eight inches deep and eight inches wide.

The box can be built of any type of lumber, but it must be put together solidly to prevent its warping under the influence of summer's rains and heat. Many are made of metal, but these generally have to be purchased. Painting generally helps to prevent warping. The standard color for such boxes is green.

Holes should be bored in the bottom of the flower box to provide adequate drainage. Sudden thunder storms bring an excessive fall of rain sometimes, and this rain, if the soil in the flower box is not well drained, will result in the drowning of your plants.

Before plants are set in the boxes, be sure that you have on hand some good earth. Good rich soil from the woods, if free from weed seed, is satisfactory for boxes. If this is not available, take ordinary garden soil, mix it with leaf mould or sand to add a drainage medium, and add a little commercial fertilizer. Then you're ready to set the plants.

First cover the holes in the

The name of Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland capitalist and industrial magnate, was drawn into the Senate's stock market investigation when the collapse of Continental Shares, Inc., investment company organized by Eaton, came under scrutiny. A spokesman for minority stockholders charged stocks valued at $16,000,000, held by the investment company, were appropriated by Eaton for other enterprises, with approval of a board of "dummy directors." The public lost $100,000,000 in the defunct trust, a committee investigator charged.

bottom of the box with cinders. Then spread some old leaves over the cinders and on top of these put your soil. Fill in the box to a depth about an inch from the top. This will be ample to provide for any excess of water.

How To Set Plants
In setting plants, dig a hole large enough to accommodate the root system. Most plants for boxes are bought from greenhouses in pots. Remove these plants from the pots by gently tapping the sides of the container and loosening the earth gathered around the roots. You then can see how large the root system is.

Set the plant in the hole, fill in the earth around it tamping it down well, and then soak the soil with water to settle the earth well around the roots. Your box is then finished except for watering the plants during a dry spell, ridding them of insects, and keeping the little soil area free of weeds.

Geraniums, marguerites, ageratum, English ivy, sweet alyssum, blue lobelia, petunias, dracena, fountains, blue periwinkle and vinca vines.

Senate Passes Huge Bill for Aid to Jobless

Gives Approval to 2 Billion Relief Measure

NO RECORD VOTE

Passes Entire Democratic Program in
One Vote

Washington (AP)—The $2,300,000,000 Democratic unemployment relief program was approved today by the senate.

The gigantic relief bill was passed without a record vote amid a chorus of ayes.

The senate passed the entire Democratic program in one bill, adding at the last moments the $300,000,000 measure for direct relief loans to states, which it approved two weeks ago.

A presidential veto was freely predicted by administration senators in view of the bill's provision for a $300,000,000 public works bond issue, to which President Hoover is opposed.

The final form of the measure is still a matter of speculation however, as it carries to conference with it the $2,300,000,000 Garner relief bill which was passed by the house. A compromise will be worked out.

The senate added the $300,000,000 bill in order to get it in conference because of the refusal of house leaders to consider the measure separately.

The bill also would authorize a $1,500,000,000 increase in the borrowing power of the Reconstruction corporation for loans on self-liquidating construction projects.

Washington (AP)—Speeding toward a final vote on the Democratic relief bill, the senate today rejected an amendment to make advances to states on their bonds for educational and hospitalization purposes.

The vote against the proposal of Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) to make available $200,000,000 for this purpose was 77 to 15.

Working under a drastic limitation of debate rule, the senate was rapidly approaching a vote on the controversial $2,000,000,000 unemployment aid bill.

The senate then added to the Democratic relief bill the $300,000,000 measure it passed two weeks ago for emergency jobless aid loans to states. This brought the total of the Democratic bill to $2,300,000,000.

The $300,000,000 bill was originally a part of the measure, but was separated in an effort to speed its enactment.

House leaders, however, refused to consider the separate measure and the senate replaced it in the bill to get it into conference.

Before approving it, however, the senate amended the bill to provide for immediate advances to state governors of one-third of the funds allocated to them.

The house, with nothing to do, did not even meet today, recessing until Friday.

When the $2,000,000,000 relief bill was passed, senate leaders intended to call up for final disposal the conference report of the national economy bill, with the modified house version of the far-reaching plan for immediate approval before the bill could go to the White House.

The extraordinarily long senate session of yesterday and last night was productive of considerable result. Despite a half-throat of a presidential veto for the entire relief bill, the senate insisted on keeping in the $300,000,000 public works bond issue plan demanded by its Democratic authors. It rejected, 77 to 15, Senator La Follette's (R., Wis.) plan to increase this bond issue to five and a half billions. It rejected an amendment which would have permitted loans directly to cities, such as Chicago, to make possible payment of its school teachers, police and firemen.

Likewise it rejected all sorts of proposals to bring this interest and that within the scope of the federal aid proposed by the measure. Short-tempered members delayed each step with their debate but rejected time and again all efforts to cut the talking short.

German Proposes Pact
For French Security

Lausanne, Switzerland (AP)—Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany today proposed privately a military alliance between France and Germany as a means of meeting France's demand for security before disarmament.

Such an alliance, which would represent the lion and the lamb lying down together in the field of European military affairs, would, he said, be the best way of solving the problems which face the disarmament conference as a result of the French fear of invasion and their security.

PRINCE OF WALES

Prince of Wales Still a Bachelor On 38th Birthday

Heir to British Throne Takes Day Off—Leaves
Busy Year Behind

London (AP)—Albert Edward, prince of Wales, celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday today, still the world's most eligible bachelor, in spite of fervent wishes expressed in Britain a year ago today that there might be a princess of Wales on his next anniversary.

In contrast with recent birthdays when his schedule of work and engagements has been followed as usual, he decided to take a day off today. The only task he assigned himself was to read the thousands of congratulatory messages that poured in from all corners of the world.

Early in the forenoon he left Sunningdale, his summer home, to play golf somewhere in the country. This evening he was to dine with the queen and other members of the royal family. He will not attend the court presentations tonight but probably will be present at tomorrow's court.

He left behind him a busy year when he wrote this morning to realize he was 38.

During it he has taken up motor boating, made a hole in one, been badly shaken up in an automobile accident, become a book collector, taken up cycling, led the world in the wearing of berets, and suffered several days illness.

He played Santa Claus at a party attended by his household staff and their families, became a football fan, became a gymnastic instructor for his two young nephews, and opened the new Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon, among other things too numerous to mention.

It was discovered he is fond of trips, and on occasions, doesn't like strangers to follow him on golf courses, has sympathy for the unemployed, and has hopes of seeing British industrial conditions improve.

He represented Great Britain at the funeral of President Paul Doumer of France, acted as a guide to a group of tourists in London, sent a life guard's uniform to a little boy who had been brave and had a radio installed in his plane.

He swapped flying yarns with Amelia Earhart after her trans-Atlantic flight, told an audience of farmers at a county fair they were behind the times and was appointed honorary air commodore by his father, the king, on the latter's birthday early this month.

Fall River Farmer is Dead in Crossing Crash

Fall River (AP)—Earl Neibus, 51, a farmer, is dead because the Olympian, Milwaukee road train, was 90 minutes late yesterday. Familiarity with train schedules, it is thought, led him to believe tracks were clear. His car was hit by the belated train.

French Bitter Foes of Hoover Arms Proposal

Favorable Reactions Reported, However, in Other European Nations

BACKED IN GERMANY

Proposals Create Sensation
In British Press—Japanese Surprised

Washington (AP)—Insistence by the French government upon a security pact, reported in press dispatches from Geneva concerning President Hoover's arms slash plan, brought the assertion today in high governmental quarters that the United States under no conditions would consider entering such an agreement.

(By the Associated Press)
Newspapers and officials in the principal European countries today greeted President Hoover's plan for general disarmament cuts, announced yesterday, with more or less favor.

The French papers, however, almost universally condemned it as "demagogic" and as an electioneering scheme.

The widely read Petit Parisien of Paris said if it had been submitted last February "together with the French constructive plan, it would have elicited only applause, but today it appears as a piece of extreme demagoguery and an electoral maneuver."

President Hoover might be forgiven for addressing "an electoral manifesto to Europe," Le Matin of Paris said, "but he can hardly be forgiven for forgetting that an international conference is held to confer, and not as a registry for ukases."

The widely known political writer, E. H. Carr, in the Nationalist Echo of Paris, said:

"President Hoover seeks to impress the multitude by an elementary measure which the simplest can understand."

L'Oeuvre, organ of the left at Paris, said since no revision of the debts was mentioned "we are asked

Award Contracts For Highway Jobs

Total of 670 Miles of Surfacing of State Trunk Roads Included

Madison (AP)—The state highway commission said today that contracts have been awarded for 670 miles of surfacing on the state trunk highway system and that the season's total of concrete paving, including 72 miles soon to be let, will be 329 miles.

The department said its labor records show 5,617 men employed on the state trunk system, 2,055 on the payrolls of contractors and 3,562 on county highway payrolls.

In addition, there are bridge structures, totalling $1,172,607 under contract, including the De Pere bridge over Fox river and the Chippewa Falls bridge over the Chippewa river.

"Unheard of prices for highway work have been secured and Wisconsin's pay as you go policy of financing highway improvement out of current receipts has enabled the state to carry on a normal program while states operating under state bond issues have in several cases reduced highway improvement to a half or a quarter," the commission said.

Completion of U. S. Highway 53 to Spooner and the paving of State Trunk Highway 13 to within 70 miles of Ashland are on the commission's 5-year program and when finished will provide further extension of an all weather outlet from Lake Superior to the south.

Under the terms of the state and counties permit, this work may be speeded up, the commission said.

11 Honorary Degrees Conferred by Harvard

Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—Harvard university today conferred 11 honorary degrees at its 295th commencement. The recipients including Richard B. Bennett, premier of Canada; Samuel Seabury, New York city investigator of municipal affairs; and Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury. President A. Lawrence Lowell conferred the degrees.

Seabury, former judge of the court of appeals of New York state, was made a doctor of laws with the following citation:

"Where others failed this knight is found to fight the dragon assailing the fair city of New York." Premier Bennett and Secretary Mills also received doctorates of law.

Iowa Publisher is Named Director of U. S. Finance Board

Washington (AP)—President Hoover today appointed Garner Cowles, Sr., publisher of the Des Moines, Iowa, Register and Tribune, to be a member of the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Cowles will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Charles G. Dawes. However, today, the presidency of the corporation, also vacated by Dawes, will not be filled until later.

White House officials said that under the corporation's rules its president does not have to be a member of the board of directors. It was considered possible, however, that the presidency might be filled from within the board. Cowles is listed as an independent Republican.

Garfield Defends Plank on Liquor

Statement Seen as Attempt To Offset Borah's
Strenuous Opposition

Washington (AP)—An attempt to offset Senator Borah's violent opposition to the Republican platform and its prohibition declaration was seen today in a new statement from James R. Garfield defending the party's campaign utterance.

Chairman of the committee which drafted that platform, Garfield not only argued strenuously the points made by the Idaho senator against the resubmission plank, but expressed regret that Borah was unwilling to continue giving "his thought and ability toward a constructive, forward-looking program."

In political circles here there was a feeling the Republican high command not only is determined to counteract any influence Borah's denunciation may have had, but would even like to find a way of enlisting his impressive campaigning talents for the president.

Borah is believed by some to have left himself a way open to support Mr. Hoover, despite his declaration before the senate that he would not aid the Republican nominee if he runs on the party platform. Should the president's acceptance speech, still more than a month off, interpret or expand that platform in a manner pleasing to Borah, the senator believes the senator might support him.

Garfield's statement argued the Republican submission plan, if accepted, would leave congress full power to prevent return of the saloon in any state and full control over the states of any prohibition or system of liquor distribution they might choose. On the contrary, he said, straightout repeal would leave congress absolutely unable to prevent the saloon.

Stock Market 'Victims'
Rap New York Exchange

Washington (AP)—In the role of "victims" of stock market operations, two women today hurriedly sought straightout repeal of change and private dealers in testimony before the senate banking committee.

Testifying in the committee's stock market investigation, Miss Grace Vanbraam Roberts of Highland, N. Y., said the New York exchange "condones a fraud when committed by prominent brokers."

Earlier, Miss Ann Gushue, a Cheyenne, Wyo., bank employee, who had been sold Continental shares at 23 although the stock had never brought more than 75 on the exchange and now is selling for little or nothing.

Treasure From Vessel

Brest, France (AP)—Divers of the salvage vessel Artigou II resumed work today over the wrecked liner Egypt, which yesterday yielded a haul of ingots valued at several million francs.

It was learned today that the weight of the gold brought up from the treasure room of the Egypt which was sunk in 1922 with $5,000,000 worth of gold and silver aboard, was more than 230 pounds.

U. W. Refuses to Accept Chicago "Scrip" Offers

Madison (AP)—The offer of 40 Chicago school teachers to attend summer sessions at the University of Wisconsin if they are permitted to take all the chances on that type of collateral and we do not feel that we are in a position to speculate on the value of it.

Dean Scott Goodnight, director of the summer school, who recommended acceptance of the "scrip" when he referred the matter to the board of regents, today admitted the refusal to accept it is "probably wise in the long run."

Estimate 100 Persons Dead In Tidal Wave

Exact Check on Casualties in Mexican Tragedy Still Is Impossible

MANY ARE INJURED

Towns Along West Coast
Wiped Out—Relief
Agencies Begin Work

BULLETIN
Colima, State of Colima, Mexico (AP)—Gov. Salvador Saeudo informed the Associated Press today that there were perhaps 100 dead in yesterday's tidal wave and a great danger of pestilence would follow unless outside aid came immediately.

Mexico City (AP)—Mexican relief agencies were concentrated today on the task of alleviating the suffering of thousands of people in towns along the west coast which were virtually wiped out yesterday by a tidal wave that took a toll of two score lives.

An accurate check of the casualties was not possible today because of the disorganized condition of the territory.

Colima reported that the known number of injured there was 62, but it could not be determined how many lives were lost.

Gov. Salvador Saeudo of the state of Colima, said today for Cuytulan, where the wave struck hardest, to take charge of the situation. Before he left he called Mexico City to appeal for public aid.

He said the death toll at Cuytulan, a resort town, now had passed 40 with additional missing and more than 100 injured. The wave was preceded by sharp earthquake shocks.

Two relief trains left here for Cuytulan. The first train evacuated 1,400 persons from the town.

Wave Sweeps Over Land
The governor reported the tidal wave swept inland for more than a mile over an 18-mile front, leveling everything in its path.

Federal soldiers were searching for additional victims, and burning thousands of dead fish left on the beach when the waves receded. Danger of disease made necessary temporary evacuation of the inhabitants.

Two minor earthquakes preceded the heavy temblor which ushered in the wave and aroused the inhabitants, many of whom fled to the beach for safety. There the tidal wave trapped them, sweeping many inland to death or outward into the sea.

This month is likely to go down as one of the worst in Mexico's history of disastrous natural phenomena. Two major earthquakes have shaken the country this month, and a dozen cities have been damaged by cyclones besides the effect of yesterday's tidal wave. The tidal property damage extends into millions.

The tiny state of Colima has borne the brunt of the disasters which are believed here to be centered about some ocean bed shift off the central west coast. Upwards of fifty minor quakes have been recorded by instruments here in the last five days and the total light shocks for the month already has passed 100.

Report Janesville Man
May Be Federal Judge

Milwaukee (AP)—The Milwaukee Journal today said it learned that the name of William Dougherty, Janesville attorney, has been sent to Washington by republicans in charge of patronage in the state as a possible successor to the late Federal Judge C. Z. Luse.

The paper said the proposed appointment of State Senator George W. Blanchard, Edgerton, to fill the vacancy "could not be confirmed in the state" and that Senators La Follette and Blaine opposed him.

Hence, the Journal says, George Vits, Manitowish, Republican national committeeman, was instructed to send in other names. The attorney general's department suggested that four names be sent in and that the appointee be chosen from the four. The appointee, the paper said, will be a Western district resident.

Lindbergh First
Witness at Trial

Flemington, N. J. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will be the state's first witness in the trial of John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder, who is accused of perpetrating a hoax that served to obstruct the search for Colonel Lindbergh's kidnapped and slain baby son. The trial is scheduled to begin Monday.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., said he would call Col. Lindbergh immediately after the jury is completed. He expected the jury to be complete at noon of the opening day.

Among about nine other witnesses, Hauck said, will be police officers who made futile investigations on the strength of information supplied by Curtis. He also planned to introduce portions of Curtis' statement and alleged confession into evidence. The confession has been repudiated by Curtis.

Hauck said the state would be unable to complete its case in one day, but expected the jury to be ready for deliberation by the end of the week.

Curtis claimed, during the search for the Lindbergh baby, that he was in touch with the kidnapers. To this end he made several trips by boat in company with Col. Lindbergh. The police said he confessed, after the baby's body was found near the Lindbergh home, that he had never been in communication with the kidnapers.

Fresh Meadow Country Club,
Flushing, N. Y. (AP)—Olin Dutra, younger of the two Spanish brothers from the Los Angeles district, shot a sensational 69, one under par, today for the lead in the first round of the United States open golf championship.

The husky Californian negotiated the last nine holes in 33, two under par, after dropping a single stroke to perfect figures with an outward 35 he narrowly missed putts for birdies on the 16th and 18th, after firing beautiful approaches to the green.

Dutra replaced Leo Diegel as the early pace setter with a 73.

It was the first successful attack of the tournament on old man par and established the far western entry as an unexpected contender.

Dutra gave a brilliant shot making exhibition in mastering the difficulties of Fresh Meadow, especially on the back nine, where a number of favorites had cracked, including MacDonald Smith, George Von Elm and Densmore Shute.

Dutra's score gave him a five stroke advantage over Gene Sarazen, the British open champion, and Jose Jurado, Argentine ace, each with 74 for the opening round. The par-breaker was six strokes ahead of the defending champion, Bill Burke, and Walter Hagen, each with 75.

Bishop Cannon Says
Drys Prepared for Vote on Prohibition

Chicago (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., fighting prohibition leader, says the allied dry forces are as willing "as the wettest of the wet" to have the people speak on prohibition.

Arriving here yesterday en route to Iowa, the Methodist Episcopal (South) church official announced the dries would make as determined a fight for a straight enforcement plank at the Democratic convention as they did at the Republican.

"Then we will take it to the country," he declared. And the result, he said, will be "surprising."

"You will find," the bishop predicted, "that the country isn't controlled by the wet states and that the folks back home will have something to say."

Anton Jansen, president of the village of Little Chute, was elected president of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities in convention at St. Mary school auditorium, Menasha, this morning. He succeeds George W. Mead, Wisconsin Rapids.

He won the election on the third ballot with 178 votes. R. P. Murray, Marinette mayor received 144 votes. Dr. J. H. Wallis, mayor of Rice Lake, who with Mr. Jansen was named in the report of the nominating committee, was dropped in the second ballot when it was decided by the convention to vote on the two men who received the most votes on that ballot.

Through the withdrawal of W. W. Parter, village clerk of Hartland, I. E. Lurvey, Fond du Lac city attorney, was unanimously elected vice president. The other vice presidents, secretary and treasurer are to be named by league trustees.

Securing 213 votes, Waukeles was selected for the 1933 convention. There were 394 votes cast. Columbus received 78 votes. A request to entertain the convention in 1934 was received in a telegram from Fond du Lac at the close of this morning's session.

Members of the nominating committee were Mayor John V. Diener, Green Bay; J. M. Fleming, Eau Claire.

Contest Hearings

Despite protests from the regular pro-Roosevelt delegation from Minnesota that it was too early to proceed, the national committee subcommittee appointed to hear Democratic convention seating contests decided today to go ahead with the arguments.

Previously the subcommittee postponed for hearing tomorrow by the full committee the Louisiana contest brought by former Gov. J. Y. Sanders against the delegation headed by Senator Long.

Long challenged the validity of the subcommittee and Sanders expressed unwillingness to proceed in Long's absence.

William F. Donahue, St. Cloud, Minn., representing the regular Roosevelt delegation, also questioned the authority of the subcommittee.

But on motion of J. C. Adams of Texas, the subcommittee agreed to proceed after Ray G. Mooney, Waseca, representing the contesting faction, had expressed readiness to present the case.

Mooney argued Donahue's statement that he was not ready was not made in good faith since he had a month's notice of the hearing.

Neil Cronin, city attorney of Minneapolis, representing the anti-Roosevelt delegation, argued the Roosevelt convention in Minnesota was illegal in that it excluded 141 regularly elected Hennepin-co-delegates and voted "secret members" appointed by the state chairman who were not delegates.

"The voters of Minnesota have repudiated the notion of that convention," Cronin said.

Smith Says Candidate

On 1st Vote

Chicago (AP)—William G. McAdee and Alfred E. Smith, who fought through more than a hundred ballots in 1924 for the presidential nomination, buried the hatchet today when McAdee called on Smith at his headquarters.

Chicago (AP)—A new voice was raised against the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt today as the forces of the New York governor took charge of the resolutions committee and sought to make economic issues instead of prohibition the dominant campaign theme.

While an eager ear was turned toward Tammany to learn to what candidate the bulk of New York's 94 votes will be thrown, two more presidential candidates came to town—Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, and former
